Slump Over, We'll Go Fast Now, City Industry Heads Say

Conversion Problem Whipped, They Say, But Opinion's Split On Need of New War Plant To Prevent Labor 'Draft.'

EDITOR'S NOTE:—Having visited both Newark and Marion to see what new war plants are expected to do for those communities, John M. Schroeder, News-Journal city editor, today looks at the situation in Mansfield, both as it concerns the industrial prospects and why the city finds itself in the situation it now faces.

By JOHN M. SCHROEDER
(News-Journal City Editor)

By comparison with the prospects in Newark and the actual figures in Marion, Mansfield's status in this grim business of war production doesn't seem too bright right now.

But, for the complete picture, we should take a look not only at what goes on in Mansfield, but what the prospects for the future are.

A previous article in this series told what Newark expects to happen as the result of landing the $22,000,000 Aluminum Company of America plant, on which construction will start Aug 1

Another article described what has really happened in Marion since construction actually started on the giant Scioto ordnance plant. Some 3,800 workers are now busy in construction work on it, and when it starts operation it is due to employ from 12,000 to 20,000 persons

A third article told how Marion's boom might affect Mansfield. It's already in the books of the U. S Employment Service that Marion expects to call 2,500 from Mansfield and Richland county to work in the ordnance plant.

Hemmed in with war plants in surrounding cities, it appears that Mansfield and Richland county form the greatest potential source of labor for Marion.

Now what's Mansfield's picture today?

Mansfield industry now has "touched bottom" in its long and hard process of conversion into war production. And industrialists tell you that, from now on, Mansfield employment is going to skyrocket.

By the end of the year, they see possibilities of a labor shortage and early in 1943, the Chamber of Commerce, basing its estimates on reports from industry, expects employment to go far beyond the 1941 all-time peak employment figure of 13,123.

The question now comes up, will this sky-rocketing employment picture be strong enough—without a new war industry here—to forestall a possible manpower draft of 2,500 men and women to Marion's plant?

Will it be strong enough to keep those people home, preventing another blow at Mansfield business?

As was said before, Mansfielders engaged in production of war products won't be subject to the Marion call. It's the non-war workers who will be called—if and when such a movement to Marion starts.

Opinions seem to be divided among industrialists on whether Mansfield should go after a war industry

Two prominent industrial leaders said a war industry would be a good thing for Mansfield if the type of plant obtained would, in peace-time, go into the manufacture of peace-time products.

"It would make Mansfield grow, and I want to see Mansfield grow," is the way one of them put it.

This series of stories brought another interesting observation.

Knowing that it had a big problem on its hands, what did Mansfield do to pick up the slack?

In Newark where the employment picture was just about like Mansfield's, a movement was started to get a new industry.

To get that picture let's go back before Pearl Harbor and trace developments since.

Everyone remembers the Mansfield of those days—pictures of our homes and factories in the magazines, with captions "Outstanding American City." Everyone remembers how steadily our industry grew, how substantial was our retail business, how our home-building activity ranked us among the top cities in the state.

Those were the good old days—when there were no war clouds on the horizon.

All that was swell, before Pearl Harbor.

Of course no one here could foresee Dec. 7, 1941, or what it was going to do to Mansfield.

Maybe that's what makes today's situation so tough to take. Mansfield isn't used to doldrums—and by that we don't mean that Mansfield isn't tough enough to take it. But Mansfield has been punched around, and no one can deny it's feeling the punching.

Let's look at a few figures to see just where we stood in "Mansfield past."

Let's take employment, for one thing.

Factories were busy, merchants were busy supplying employes with what they wanted and needed. All during that period, townsfolk didn't seem to worry much. They were happy and their pocketbooks weren't on the lean side.

In July, employment in Mansfield, a "consumer goods" town, reached its peak of 13,123.

At about that time, war clouds were drawing nearer to this country and the nation's program of defense — or preparedness — manufacturing took on an accelerated pace.

Then something like a bomb-shell hit Mansfield. It came from a writer on New York's Wall Street Journal. He said there hadn't been "much enthusiasm" for defense orders among manufacturers here. He added that plants here had taken the attitude that "if there's something we can make to help the government's defense program we'll be glad to do it. But we're not going after defense business."

But, he went on to say that while that was the attitude at first, it began to change when the government started to direct the flow of materials into plants manufacturing defense products.

That article was re-printed in the News-Journal and it quickly brought protests from industry. Where previously information was not available for the public on such items, it developed the next day that more than a dozen plants here were working on defense orders and that they were seeking more.

Mansfield plants were busy on war orders and they went along smoothly for a time, but the fact remains, there was a slump and there apparently was no successful action to do anything about it.

Not that it was any particular fault of industry—it had a tough job converting into war production—but there was nothing ventured in a big way and nothing gained to take up the slack.

Marion's employment charts indicate that industry there was not in distress—because its heavy goods industry did not have the conversion problem Mansfield plants had—yet it got the Scioto Ordnance plant which, when in operation, will employ more people than Mansfield has on its payrolls now.

When you consider that Marion was going at near peak employment levels when it took steps last year to obtain a new war industry and that it was in the same month—in July—that Mansfield reached its all-time employment high, the question again arises:

What did Mansfield do when the conversion slump started?

Like Newark which organized a drive to obtain a war industry when its officials saw army engineers surveying in its neighborhood, Mansfield checked up when it learned that the war department was looking for a huge tract of level land to build its Plum Brook ordnance plant.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said the chamber obtained data through an airplane survey of possible sites in Richland county. The requirements called for 2,000 acres of level land west of the foothills of the Alleghenies. A plentiful water supply was also necessary.

The chamber survey located only one parcel of level land of that size in Richland county after a thorough search for such. It was a plot to the north of Mansfield and that was submitted as a possible site.

The plant was built at Sandusky, however.

Two things have been evident as major factors in the stationing of plants at Marion, Sandusky and Newark, Routzon said.

One is that the war department appears to want such plants located on a foundation of muck soil and the other calls for an abundance of water. The area of Mansfield has a foundation of rock and the water table is none too encouraging for the location of plants the size of Sandusky and Marion, the secretary said.

Reason for the soft soil foundation is that in the event a plant should be bombed, the detonation over a more solid base would cause buildings to rock and be damaged over a wide area. It would spread bomb damage, whereas a muck soil would tend to absorb and centralize the bomb's force.

Routzon said that the Chamber did not know of any activities by

REPORT FDR ORDER TO HIT INFLATION

Congressional Sources Say President Decides Against Asking New Law.

WILL USE POWERS

Action Expected to Halt Runaway Farm Prices, Wages and Rents.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON —Congressional sources familiar with White House plans disclosed today that President Roosevelt has virtually decided to meet inflationary trends in wages, farm prices and rents by executive action instead of legislation.

Still subject to an eleventh-hour change, the president's reported decision was reflected in what amounted to an unofficial congressional recess until September.

Members of both senate and house scattered to their homes for a long-needed rest and to strengthen political fences in preparation for the fall elections. Leaders remained behind in event the president should find it necessary to change his plans but they, too, are expected to leave shortly.

It was learned Mr. Roosevelt has been advised by his legal experts that section one of the price control law gives him sufficient authority to block all general wage increases which he considers "inimical to the public interest."

He also has been advised, it was said, that general rent control would be possible to all practical purposes under the present law. But prevention of further increases in farm prices presents a more difficult problem.

The president, it was learned, was urged by his legislative leaders this week to take the fight against inflation in his own hands if possible

He had suggested that congress enact a short resolution empowering him to "fix prices and control wages," with as great dispatch as possible, warning that the inflation crisis will be at hand

Union Dispute Certified to Board By Secretary of Labor.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins today certified to the war labor board a dispute between the American Steel Foundries company and the United Steel Workers (CIO) involving 8,227 workers in seven plants and union demands for a wage increase of 12½ cents an hour.

The plants are located in Granite City, Ill.; East St. Louis, Ill.; East Chicago, Ind.; Hammond, Ind.; Alliance, O.; Verona, Pa.; and Newark, N. J.

New and Better Army Tanks on the Way

HELD IN THREAT ON LIFE OF FDR

Mansfielder Accused of Saying He'd Shoot President; U. S. Agents Pick Him Up.

Charged with threatening the life of President Roosevelt, William Thomas Kramer, 28, Mansfield furrier, whose address was given as 237 Bartley avenue, faces action by the federal grand jury following his arrest Friday in Cleveland.

Kramer's arrest followed an investigation of several months by U. S. secret service officers in cooperation with the Mansfield police sabotage squad. He was apprehended during a vacation visit to Cleveland.

Frank Halliday, chief of the secret service operatives in the Cleveland area, led the investigators and made the arrest.

When arraigned before U. S. Commissioner E. D. Nicola in Cleveland, Kramer pleaded not guilty and was held for grand jury investigation under $4,000. Mansfield relatives posted the bond Friday night to effect his release.

"If the president walked in front of me to review troops, and I had a gun, I would shoot him," Kramer allegedly declared in a conversation in a Mansfield business place several months ago, in discussing his probable call to military service.

"I guess I just had too much mouth," was Kramer's comment when he extended a plea of innocence before Commissioner Nicola.

According to local authorities Kramer recently was rejected on account of a heart ailment when called up under the selective service act for military duty

In commenting on the case today sabotage squad members rated it in the "dangerous loose talk" category which the armed forces are striving to stamp out.

PREFERS WOMEN AS AIR WARDENS

General Says They Have More Persistence Than Men.

ALBANY, N. Y.—(INS)—Women have a "particular zeal and persistence" which makes them better air raid wardens than men.

That is why Major General William N. Haskel, state civilian protection director today sought the services of 120,000 more women for this type of work.

Women, the general pointed out, also are available for duty 24 hours a day. And their knowledge of the neighborhood assists in performance of the growing duties of wardens.

Barber Gets His Revenge While Shaving German

LONDON — (INS) — The Moscow radio, according to Reuters, reported today that Lieut. Gustav Stumer, deputy chief of the Yugoslav Gestapo, had been killed by a barber who was shaving him.

The barber, the report said, was arrested and told other police officials that he was happy to have been able to avenge the death of a brother recently executed by the Gestapo.

The Moscow station also said that a special Gestapo representative had arrived in Flushing, Holland, to investigate the death of 16 German submarine officers by food poisoning.

BABIES SUFFER

U-Boat War Deprives Them of Food Vital to Malady Cure.

NEW YORK —(INS)— A serious shortage of bananas, caused by the depredations of Nazi U-boats, is threatening the survival of 200 infant victims of celiaca in New York city, it was learned today.

Because a steady diet of bananas is essential to any cure of the rare abdominal disease, Axis submarines attacks on Central and South American shipping have created a pressing health problem for authorities.

The strange malady and its stranger antidote came to public attention this week when a bunch of bananas was stowed aboard a Canadian Colonial Airways plane at La Guardia field.

They were destined for the sick room of 22-months-old Margo Bradley, daughter of a Canadian newspaperman, whose life was placed in jeopardy by the dearth of bananas in Montreal

ASKS U. S. WATCH FOR SABOTEURS

FBI Chief Says Three Experts Likely To Come from Germany.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, asked the nation today to be on the lookout for three men identified as expert German Saboteurs who he said might come to the United States

The three have been trained in the German sabotage school and have received orders from the Nazi high command to come to this country to destroy vital war industries, Hoover said in a statement.

They were associated with the eight Nazi saboteurs now on trial before a military commissions sitting secretly in the justice department, the FBI chief said.

TRAIN KILLS SHELBY MAN, 78

Witness Says William Hart Apparently Failed to See or Hear Engine.

SHELBY — En route to a grocery store here, William Hart, 78, of 24 Marvin avenue, was instantly killed today when he walked into the path of a southbound New York Central passenger train at the North Gamble street crossing a short distance from his home.

Police said Hart's body was cut in two by the impact and thrown 150 feet along the right of way. The train, they said, was 42 minutes late and was traveling at a high rate of speed. It did not stop.

The tragedy occurred at 9:45 a. m It was witnessed by Mrs. R. L. Corvick, who was waiting for the train to pass. She said the retired grocer apparently failed to see the flasher lights, or hear the train's whistle.

He is survived by his widow, Mary. The couple have no children.

The body was removed to the Barkdull funeral home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Receptionist at City Hall City's First In WAAC

Miss Betty May Thompson, 25-year-old Mansfield private pilot and receptionist at City Hall, will become an Officer Candidate for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, at Fort Des Moines, Ia., August 31

Notification of her acceptance to the officer ranks of the WAAC, America's first women's army, was received by the Officer Candidate this morning as she occupied her regular post at city hall.

Both Miss Thompson and another Mansfield girl, Miss Betty Ackerman took examinations for officers' training in Columbus last month. Whether or not the latter also received notification today could not be learned as the Ackerman family had left on a vacation.

Miss Thompson is the daughter of Mrs K. J. Thompson, 511 Marion avenue. She is a graduate of Northwestern university and has been employed at City Hall for more than a year.

Exact Bloody Toll as Nazis Gain In South

Soviets Ordered to Die Rather Than Retreat as 600,000 Germans, 2,000 Tanks Crack Defense Line In Drive on Caucasus.

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—Six hundred thousand German troops, aided by 2,000 tanks and the entire Nazi air force stationed on the Russian front, hammered at the gates of Rostov today and broke through one sector of the Soviet defenses.

Under order from the Russian high command to die rather than retreat, Red troops in the Caucasus made the Germans pay lavishly in blood for every foot of the ground gained.

The appalling extent of Nazi casualties was disclosed in an official estimate revealing that 100,000 Germans, Hungarians and Rumanians have been killed during the past month on the Voronezh front.

The unprecedentedly savage fighting in that area is believed to have been surpassed at Rostov.

Over the flat, hot and dusty roads of the Don steppes around Rostov, heavy air battles are raging without cessation.

Using American-built Douglas and Boeing two-motored bombers and their own formidable Stormovik dive-bombing craft, the Russians are attacking enemy supply columns hour by hour.

The main object of the Red air force is to prevent the Germans from constructing bridgeheads along the Don.

German bombers, protected by one fighter each, are flying in large, compact formations, dropping parachutists behind the Soviet lines incessantly in an effort to disorganize the Soviet rear.

The Germans also are heavily bombing large populated points in the Rostov vicinity.

The Russians struck back savagely from the air, sending far-ranging American-built bombers to blast German tanks and airdromes.

Red Star, official organ of the Soviet army, carried a dispatch from the Rostov front line in which it was conceded that the gateway city to the oil fields of the Caucasus is "in great danger."

A formidable German force is advancing on the city in an attempt to break through and is gradually pressing the defenders back, Red Star said.

In the Soviet capital the situation at both Rostov and Tsimlyansk, on the Don river 125 miles to the northeast, was described as "alarming."

The high command said that terrific battles had been fought throughout the night around Voronezh and in the areas of Tsimlyansk, Novocherkassk and Rostov.

Nazi mechanized armies were driving in on Rostov from three directions, north, east and west.

Urging the Russian forces to defend the oil-rich Caucasus with their last ounce of strength the high command said:

"The Russian watchword is 'we will die but not retreat'."

The plight of the Russian armies in the Tsimlyansk area was increased when the Germans, after failing in a first attempt to establish a bridgehead on the south bank of the Don river, sent a second force across and succeeded in consolidating their position, Red Star said.

Other German troops are now forcing their way across the river, it was said.

PERILED: New Jap Invasion Nearly Cut Off by Bombings

(By United Press)

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—The new Japanese invasion forces in the Buna-Gona area of New Guinea, with one transport sunk, two disabled and the others withdrawing under constant air attack, are nearly cut off from retreat, an army spokesman said today.

Forty-five thousand pounds of high explosive and fire bombs—the biggest Allied operations in the entire New Guinea air war—were dropped on the Buna-Gona area yesterday in five raids. Bombers, dive-bombers and fighter planes participated Direct hits were scored, big fires started and one anti-aircraft battery silenced.

So fierce were the attacks, according to a communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters, that Japanese cargo vessels were unable to unload, and were forced to withdraw north, under protection of naval forces.

The sinking of the transport and the disablement of two apparently occurred on Wednesday, when the Japanese landed.

It is now indicated that few, if any, Japanese ships were left in the vicinity of the new invasion. Thus, the invaders ashore would have to be supplied quickly or face eventual annihilation.

The dive-bombers were A-24's, manufactured by Douglas, which the army adopted from the original navy design. It was the first published announcement that the Allies were using regular dive-bombers in this area.

It was believed that three Japanese transports were sunk Wednesday, as they tried to land the troops aboard them. The trans-

RENEWED: Allied Planes, Guns Rip Rommel's Front, Rear Lines

(By United Press)

CAIRO, Egypt—Allied air and artillery forces were reported renewing attacks on enemy front and rear lines today after a week of intense aerial operations in which United States bombers made seven damaging raids against Axis targets in Crete and on the North African coast.

Ground activity was comparatively slight yesterday and front dispatches today indicated little important action on the line west of El Alamein. (Reports from London said that the British had withdrawn from one or two secondary points gained in offensive thrusts this week because of intense Axis artillery fire, but the reports were not elaborated.)

The U. S. air force, under Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, announced the following operations this week:

"Units of the American air forces carried out seven operations against Tobruk, Benghazi harbor, Sud. Bay and Crete.

"Observations indicated that the operations caused heavy damage to enemy docks, and port installations. Several medium sized merchant ships were left in flames. At Benghazi one large merchant vessel was set afire by a direct hit."

The attacks on Suda Bay were made in daylight.

British planes shot down or destroyed 24 planes at El Daba base.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — The greatest mass mud-slinging Hollywood ever saw is going on today for a movie called "No Time for Love," and a bad time is being had by all, including Claudette Colbert.

It's all on account of the sandhogs now tunnelling away under New York's East River, which gave somebody an idea for a story which somebody else decided should be put on the screen.

Paramount's tunnel is on a sound stage and it isn't all there, just sections of it, made out of old wood and paper and some steel—just enough steel to hold back the mud, which isn't mud at all but is a great deal muddier.

* * *

IT SEEMS that when sandhogs go tunnelling, one of the big obstacles they have to meet is a vein of gooey, uncooperative mud. Sandhog Fred MacMurray is in pretty bad repute on account of some pictures News Photographer Colbert had published, so Claudette smuggles herself into the tunnel and gets pictures proving that Fred's freezing machine—which makes a sort of mud ice cream and lets the work proceed—will really function. This is well and good, only just as Claudette gets her snapshots the wall behind her caves in under unfrozen mud pressure, and down goes Claudette, swimming in goo.

Claudette, her hair freshly "done" in tight ringlets, stood on a sandbag off the set and got a preview of her fate. Up camera way Mitchell Leisen, wearing trunks and high rubber boots, directed proceedings which seemed to be mainly concerned with keeping back the mud until time to shoot. Various trunks-clad, hip-booted brawnies lent their weight to this task.

Lou Vance, the construction engineer who planned it all from photos of the original, said there were 75,000 pounds of goo behind that shield.

Vance had rigged up an elevator to haul the goo up to the special tank and pour it down. The goo was mineral gelatin—unflavored.

* * *

WE WERE standing there in our capacity of innocent bystander when the goo departed from script and came through as a small avalanche, knocking the brawny muscle-men around like paper dolls, sprawling two or three into the muddy water, and sending us all scrambling for higher ground.

That was where Claudette came in, glamorous in slacks, for her preview. She sought the dryness of a stack of sandbags, took a good look at drenched, mud-splattered Director Leisen, and chuckled just as heartily as if she hadn't read the script where it says what happens to Claudette.

But she had. When we remarked it was nice to have known her all these years, she chuckled again and said, "Sh-h-h! They're using a double for me."

STATE DEFENSE COUNCIL PLANS OHIO BLACKOUT

New Chief Says Five Months Required to Set Up Machinery For Event.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — A statewide blackout is in the books for Ohio, but it will take five months to perfect necessary civilian machinery, Ralph H. Stone of Conneaut, new head of the state defense council, asserted today.

"We will try a statewide blackout eventually," he said. "Our aim is to develop civilian defense machinery to that point in five months. After all, we are primarily interested in safeguarding the home front by protecting the lives of civilians who may be subjected to enemy air raids and sabotage."

An administrative staff will be appointed, Stone declared, to coordinate and enlarge the protective program and to design a master defense plan especially suited to Ohio's needs.

Aircraft spotter crews will be organized soon in some areas and eventually will be set up in every township, he said, adding that the council is awaiting the army's go-ahead on this project.

The service program — victory gardens, nutrition and consumer projects—will continue at its present capacity, but will become secondary as the training of emergency personnel expands. The number of air wardens, demolition specialists, firefighters, auxiliary police, and other workers of this type must be increased from 120,000 to 420,000, he estimated.

Stone urged local defense councils to increase volunteer enrollment and to inaugurate new training classes. He offered services of the state council in working out community problems.

Ohio's defense program is further developed than those in many other states, he said. Major target areas have well established protection crews. Air raid control centers have been set up in 141 cities and will be increased to more than 200.

Stone, Ohio department American Legion commander in 1940 and 1941, was appointed acting defense director yesterday.

TIRE QUOTA SET

State Gets Allotment, County Share Not Yet Given.

Ohio's allotment of tires for the month of August was announced today by state rationing headquarters in Columbus but James Bailey, secretary of the Richland county board, said his board had not learned the county's quota as yet.

The state was alloted 10,352 new passenger and motorcycle tires and 13,692 new truck and farm implement tires for August.

The class A passenger tire quota was 3,284 and the allotment of Grade 2, Class B, or "war-worker" tires was 7,068. Bailey said last week that the board expected that the "war-worker" tire quotas would continue to increase until it would be "practically impossible" to get any other.

BONNER CHANGES PLEA IN SHOOTING

Mansfielder Placed on Probation For Shooting To Wound.

John Bonner, 41, colored, of 124 North Adams street, was placed on probation today for three years when he pleaded guilty before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston to an indictment for shooting to wound.

Bonner previously pleaded innocent and had been free on bond. He admitted shooting at James Randall, also colored. Bonner was ordered to report regularly to David Lantz, county probation officer.

EDITOR HELD FOR SUBVERSION

Under Guard All Night at Hospital Following Heart Attack.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—William Griffin, editor of the New York Enquirer, was to be examined by a government physician today to determine whether he may be removed from St. Clare's hospital for arraignment on a charge of having promoted revolt among the armed forces of the United States.

Griffin was one of 28 persons a Washington federal grand jury had indicted on charges of subversion.

A United States deputy marshal guarded him all night. A nation-wide search was ordered for him yesterday, but when his wife heard about it, she revealed that he was stricken Thursday night with a heart attack.

Chief Deputy Marshal Leo Lowenthal immediately went to the hospital and arrested Griffin. He found Mrs. Griffin there, in tears.

Griffin issued a statement, denouncing Special Assistant United States Attorney General William P. Maloney, who obtained the indictment, and denying "every charge, every implication and inference." He called the charges "exceedingly false and unjust."

He said he had tried to keep the nation out of war, until war was formally declared, "which is what many other patriotic American citizens tried to do, including the two major party nominees for president in 1940, according to their printed words."

WOMAN SCARES INTRUDER AWAY

Third Street Resident Screams, Routs Ransacker.

Screams frightened away an intruder who was ransacking the apartment of Miss Coral Logan, 63½ East Third street at 11 p. m. Friday, according to a report to police.

Miss Logan said she was awakened when the looter bumped against furniture, making a noise. Patrolmen who investigated found finger prints which have been photographed in an effort to trace the intruder.

SERVICES SET

Rites For Gene B. Bolley, 15, To Be Conducted Monday.

Funeral services for Gene B. Bolley, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bolley, who died yesterday at his home, 260 Ruth avenue after a two months' illness, will be conducted Monday at 1:30 p. m. at the Wappner Funeral home.

Rev. H. L. Gilbert, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, will officiate. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Surviving are his parents; a brother, Kenneth Bolley of Los Angeles, Cal.; and a sister, Mrs. Kenneth Hartman of Mansfield.

STRUCK IN EYE

Farm Hand Hurt at Fredericktown as Reins Snap.

FREDERICKTOWN — Howard Gessling, 47, a farm hand for J. Dwight Dean, of west of Fredericktown, sustained injury to an eye yesterday while threshing on a farm west of here.

Physicians who treated the wound said Gessling told them a buckle from the reins on a team he was driving snapped loose. A World War veteran, he was taken to a veteran's hospital at Dayton.

GUARDSMEN REPULSE PARATROOPS IN ALL NIGHT BATTLE MANEUVER

By EDWIN B. GREENWALD

CAMP HOCKING — (AP) — Ohio State guardsmen, fighting all night in the rugged Hocking hills, repulsed a mythical force of invading "paratroops" today in an extensive battle maneuver.

"The mission was accomplished," asserted Adj. Gen. Donald F. Pancoast. "I am well satisfied with the execution of the problem and with the morale of the men."

The guard's assignment was to drive back the "enemy invaders" and to hold them with defensive fire until regular army units arrived to destroy the band.

There was one major simulated casualty. Referees ruled that Col. B. F. Kean of Norwalk, comamnder of the second battalion, advanced too close to the line of fire and was killed in action. His command was assumed by Capt. William Morris of Cleveland.

Patrol company A of Canton, dispatched to obtain a mortar, got lost in the treacherous surroundings and returned an hour late.

Officers described the maneuver as the most difficult ever undertaken by a state or national guard company in Ohio. It brought into play all of the tactics learned in a week of drilling at this new guard base.

Pancoast and his staff viewed during the night the maneuver near here and at Camp Zaleski, the two movements being correlated.

Weapons of the guard included single-barrel shotguns, which recently replaced rifles returned to the army. The sham battle was given realism by the use of parachute flares, shelling and blank ammunition.

Chief umpire of the Hocking regiment was Col. Robert E. Boyd of Columbus, while Major Fred L. Williams of Columbus, who laid out the problem, headed the umpire staff at Zaleski.

MEN WANTED!

Recruiting Officers on Second Day of Visit Here.

Recruiting officers from the Grosse Ile naval aviation base went into their second day of recruiting today at the municipal building in an effort to find Mansfield youths to serve on maintenance crews at the base.

Lieut. Bruce Caldwell said today that six applicants were approved yesterday and will be sent to Detroit where they will take final examinations. If accepted they will go to Grosse Ile for training and maintenance duty.

Applicants will be interviewed in the civilian defense room on the second floor of the municipal building today from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Men between the ages of 17 and 35 are urgently needed at Grosse Ile to perform all kinds of maintenance work, not only on aircraft but in the hangars, shops, offices, warehouses, messhalls and fields.

START REVISION OF COUNTY MAPS

Sword To Use Aerial Photos To Correct Sectional Charts.

With county road and bridge construction virtually at a standstill because of the government restrictions on the use of materials, members of County Engineer Howard Sword's staff today had started to revise sectional maps of all the townships in the county.

Maps now in use were made in 1916 and have not been revised, according to Randall Barrett, deputy engineer. Photographs made from airplanes will be used in correcting the maps as to property lines and topography. The work will be done at the engineer's office and it is expected to require nearly a year.

MRS. SOCKMAN TAKEN BY DEATH

Lifelong Knox County Resident to Be Buried Monday.

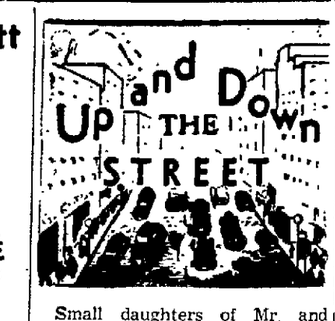
FREDERICKTOWN — A lifelong resident of Knox county, Mrs. Rebecca Ellen Sockman, 83, died early today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Brown, in Liberty township.

Surviving are the daughter, with whom she made her home; a son, Paul, of Fredericktown; 11 grandchildren, and three great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Green valley church. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Laff-a-Day

"Are you sure it isn't the uniform you've fallen for?"



Small daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Curtis, 166 West First street, can find their way around with unconcern and a note of sophistication. While walking with their mother, the litt'e girls—Anne, 4, and Grace, two, became separated from their parent. A passerby, knowing the children but confused as to distinguishing them apart, said: "why, hello, Anne," whereon the tot replied, "I'm not Anne, but hello just the same."

Getting 50 pounds of baked beans ready for the annual Salvation Army picnic this year will be no snap. Wartime curtailment has hit the variety that comes in cans on the grocer's shelf which means instead of buying the beans already canned and then just "dressing them up," the Army staff must buy the dry variety and start the cooking process from scratch.

A registered Holstein cow in the herd owned by W. B. Cockley at Lexington produced enough milk during the past year to supply the average child from birth until he is old enough to enter college. That's how the year's production of 14,633 pounds of milk was measured by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. The record of the five-year-old cow will be recorded permanently by the association.

A woman who seemed considerably excited called the selective service Board 3 office to ask how much members of the draft boards are paid. When Mrs. Erma Pierce, clerk of the board, told her they receive no salary, the caller exclaimed: "My goodness! How do they live?" Then it was necessary to explain that clerks and their assistants are the only ones affiliated with the selectives service system who are paid.

AT WORK AGAIN

'Thin Man' Molester Reported By Two Mansfield Women.

Reappearance of Mansfield's "thin man" molester was reported to police early Saturday. This is the first recorded incident of that nature since Chief Thomas M. Bell named a special detail 10 days ago to seek out the person who had been molesting Mansfield women.

Two women telephoned the police station that a man answering the previously recorded description of the molester had been following them in the vicinity of North Mulberry and West Fifth streets.

Patrolmen John L. Grohol and Carl Beard searched the neighborhood without finding the suspect.

BLOWS SELF UP WITH DYNAMITE

Airport Operator Sets Off Charge As Deputy Sheriffs Arrive.

TWENTY-NINE PALMS, Cal—(INS)—Three deputy sheriffs were recovering today from injuries received when Frank Critzer, airport operator, detonated 200 pounds of dynamite and blew himself to bits rather than submit to questioning concerning a dynamite theft.

Critzer operated the Giant Rock airport, near Twenty-Nine Palms, and lived in an unusual home constructed beneath a large boulder.

When the deputy sheriffs arrived to question him, he cried that they would not "take me alive; we're all going together," and then rushed into the house and set off the dynamite.

WOULD AFFECT INDIVIDUALS, CORPORATIONS

Program Discussed at Session Of Committee on 6 Billion War Tax Measure.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Strong sentiment for some form of compulsory savings for both corporations and individuals was manifested today by members of the senate finance committee, currently holding hearings on the house-passed $6,271,000,000 war tax bill.

Sen. George (D., Ga.), chairman of the committee and an announced advocate of compulsory savings for individuals, saw in the 5 per cent "collection at source", tax on individual incomes, the opening wedge for a forced savings program.

Advocates of the plan have long viewed it as an essential part of any program to cope with the problem of war-induced inflation now facing the United States.

George expressed the belief that such a program eventually will have to be adopted, if the administration is to succeed in skimming off billions of dollars in "excessive" purchasing power, for which there is nothing to buy.

As war spending increases, and civilian production is curtailed to conserve critical raw materials, economists contend, part of the increased national income must be "frozen" if inflationary price rises are to be avoided.

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, opposing compulsory savings, pleaded with congress to give his "voluntary" war bond drive an opportunity to prove its effectiveness in soaking up the excess. The treasury has set a goal of $12,000,000,000 in war bond sales during the 12 months ending June 30, 1943, declaring that if this sales figure is reached, the voluntary method will have been proven successful.

George, while doubting that this amount of bonds will be purchased by the public, stated recently that he would not press for compulsory savings until after the first of the year, when a new war tax bill is expected.

Sen. Taft (R., O.), meanwhile, disclosed his sentiment in favor of such a program, either in the present bill, or next January.

'Pappy' O'Daniel Has 50-50 Chance In Texas Primary

FORT WORTH, Tex. — (INS) — Senator W. Lee "Pass the Biscuits, Pappy" O'Daniel, the home folks favorite who became a national political figure, was conceded a 50-50 chance to win renomination as Texas voters went to the polls today.

There was also a strong possibility, however, that the senator would fail to get a clear majority of the primary votes cast and would therefore be forced to enter a run-off primary with one of two opponents —Dan Moody and James V. Allred, both former governors.

O'Daniel, who acquired his lengthy nickname as a radio flour salesman before he was elected governor four years ago, has campaigned vigorously for the post he first won on the death of Senator Morris Sheppard a year ago.

Allred and Moody, both ardent supporters of the Roosevelt administration whereas O'Daniel is independent in this regard, have brought the senator under sharp fire because of his war preparation record. He voted against extending the draft period.

O'Daniel replied that the war was "not an issue," and promised to support the present war effort and fight "labor racketeers" if re-elected.

DIES IN SOUTH

Rev. Tisdall Was Former Pastor In Mansfield.

Word was received here today of the death of Rev. J. J. Tisdall, a former pastor of the First Christian church in Mansfield. Rev. Tisdall died this morning in Tampa, Fla., after an illness of several months.

Rev. Tisdall occupied the pulpit of the Mansfield church for three years, from 1926 to 1929.

Memorial services are to be conducted Thursday in Columbus where he formerly served as a minister of the Church of Christ for 16 years. Burial will be in Columbus.

Slump Over, We'll Go Fast Now, City Industry Heads Say

They Report Conversion Problem Whipped, See Rapid Employment Increase In Future, But Opinion's Divided On Need of New War Plant If Need To Halt 'Draft.'

U. S. engineers in this vicinity while they were making surveys for the plant which is now located in Marion.

He said also that soundings made in the vicinity of Ontario early this year apparently ended when the rock strata and evidence of an insufficient water supply precluded any further consideration for location of a plant there whatever the type it was.

Routzon emphasized that the Chamber gave every encouragement for new industry to locate here.

More than 100 booklets, entitled "Mansfield, an Ideal Location for Manufacturing, Wholesaling and Distributing" consisting of some 25 large pages of information, detailing facts about Mansfield were sent to procurement agencies throughout the country, Routzon said.

The Chamber did not have a war industry committee until recently.

No trips were made to Washington by a Chamber delegation or by a city administration delegation in behalf of obtaining a war industry. Both Marion and Newark C. of C. and city officials made trips to Washington.

So far as the record shows, Mansfield's city council at no time was asked to pass a resolution agreeing to cooperate in any war industry venture. In Newark, the city council there passed a blanket resolution pledging cooperation. It agreed to extend its water mains and enlarge its filter system if that would help determine location of a plant there.

It passed the resolution at the request of the administration of that city. It passed it by a unanimous vote. Like in Mansfield, the Newark city council, on other matters of city business, has consistently voted six to three, along party lines.

Mayor William J. Locke could not be reached for an interview on the Mansfield situation. He has been out of the city on a fishing trip.

Routzon added that "I am not alarmed in the least in regard to the future employment and the business outlook here. Mansfield has always been regarded as a good aggressive city. Our city has 'what it takes,' a fine group of industries and the very best of management back of them.

"For the past seven years at least, Mansfield has been the envy of other cities both larger and smaller because business was better here than elsewhere.

"Today, Mansfield industries are practically through that difficult conversion period, and it has been difficult because most of the peace-time products made here had no usefulness in the war effort. New items had to be made requiring new machinery and retraining employes.

"It is my prediction that the months ahead will bring us a labor shortage and with it a scarcity of housing units."

* * *

Statements from industrialist sound a similar encouraging note. Here is what some of them say:

J. H. Ashbaugh, manager of the merchandising division and "top man," at Westinghouse in Mansfield, predicted that by Jan. 1. Westinghouse will have 3,800 on its payroll. He added that from then on there will be rapid climb on that plant's employment chart.

Conversion has been a tremendous task to that plant. Getting and installing equipment for war work cost the plant $2,700,000. Another $300,000 was spent in training key men to handle production of binoculars, ordnance materials, radios, aircraft parts, armor piercing shot, and war items to help fill war contracts of other Westinghouse plants.

* * *

Paul R. Tappan, president of the Tappan Stove company, says that the Tappan company is operating at last year's maximum employment figure, will continue to do so for the balance of this year and throughout 1943. He declined to quote employment figures, explaining that it was because of government instructions.

The company is producing 18 different kinds of war products and, since they were entirely new to the company, it resulted in a conversion that caused some delay. He described this as a "difficult" process.

* * *

James M. Hill, president of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, declaring that Empire is now employing 1,350, predicted the employment figure will stay busy until the war is over or unless a scrap shortage shows up. Empire has been operating steadily at that pace for the past year.

Empire had no difficulty with conversion due to the nature of the plant. He estimated that orders now in production total more than $3,000,000.

* * *

George W. Stephens, president of Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, says the company is operating with a normal force of 1,200. A step-up in production to as great as 50 per cent more would be possible if the rubber supply were not restricted, he said.

The company spent $500,000 to purchase truck tire machinery, and 90 per cent of the plant's turnout is for military use. This new machinery would allow the greater production percentage. However, the government appears to be parceling out just enough rubber to keep each plant in normal production.

* * *

Robert Shaffer, vice president of the Dominion Electrical company, says plant now is at a low point in operations with 200 employed, and that the plant is working now on war contracts totaling $1,500,000. He hesitates to predict "what will happen when the present orders are filled.

The company has spent two months converting to war production. It has had a staff working for 14 months in pursuit of war contracts.

* * *

Ohio Brass spokesman says the company expects to increase its employment 40 per cent before the end of the year, mostly through contracts for making ammunition parts.

Ohio Brass regularly manufactured products of the Ohio Brass company are recognized as essential to the war effort and in that respect is operating under supervision of the War Production board. "An authoritative opinion from the fields we serve is that requirements for power and mass transportation will increase to the point that WPB will be warranted in relaxing many of its present restrictions on construction. If this happens the demand for our regular products will increase substantially," the spokesman said.

The "unsung heroes" of Mansfield—smaller plants—are going full blast in war production. Most of them had no problems of conversion. While their individual employment figures would not contribute substantially to the picture of what's going on in Mansfield, collectively they amount to an imposing figure.

NIST RESIGNS

Quits as Draft Board Member To Take Washington Post.

The resignation of Atty. Earl A. Nist, member of Selective service board No. 1, was announced today by Tod Patton, board secretary.

Patton said Nist had given up his position on the board to accept a position with the Civil service commission in Washington. He has already left the city.

Member of board No. 1 since the selective service boards were set up, Nist was service-safety director in 1938 and 1939 during the administration of Claude M. Hunter, former mayor.

VETO SEEN

FDR Expected to Stall Change In Synthetic Rubber Plan.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A presidential veto apparently was ready today for legislation under which the government would in some measure abandon petroleum as a base for synthetic rubber and use more farm products.

The house yesterday passed a senate-approved bill to create an independent agency with the authority and the money to contract with manufacturers for an increased supply of the vital product for both war and essential civilian uses.

This proposed revision of the rubber production program has been opposed by the administration. Under current policy petroleum is designated as the base for most of the synthetic produced under direction of the War Production board and the Rubber Reserve corporation.

ATLANTIC SHIP TOLL NOW 400

Navy Announces Sinking Of Merchant Vessel; All Rescued.

(By Associated Press)

The toll taken by U-boats in the western Atlantic neared the 400 mark today with the navy announcement of the sinking of a medium-sized U. S. merchant vessel 800 miles off the coast July 16.

All of 123 persons aboard were rescued in the torpedoing, which raised to 398 the unofficial Associated Press tabulation of Allied and neutral ship losses in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

The American vessel was hit in broad daylight by a submarine which remained submerged. There were 66 passengers and 57 crewmen on the ship.

Yesterday the navy announced the sinking of another U. S. cargo vessel.

LOSES TITLE

MEDFORD, Ore — (INS) — Miss Lana Turner, the curvacious blond whose poses for still pictures skyrocketed her to movie fame as the "sweater girl," has lost her title of "favorite femme" recently voted by soldiers at the Medford cantonment.

And it's all because she got herself married. The doughboys don't want any part of a woman who cannot devote her full time to thinking about a multiple unit of boy friends.

Chorus Sings In City Sunday

The Massillon Community chorus of 24 voices under the direction of Ward Law will present two concerts of sacred music Sunday at the Mt. Calvary Baptist church, 343 North Main street. The group's first program at 4 p. m. will be featured by the singing of special numbers requested by the audience. The chorus will present their regular concert at 8:30 p. m.

EXPECT ORDER ON INFLATION

Congressmen Say FDR to Use Special Powers on Rent, Wages, Farm Prices.

in another month. Leaders replied that the committee to which the resolution would first be referred probably would require that much time to question Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

Wages generally were believed to be exempt from the price control law at the time of its enactment.

But Attorney General Francis Biddle has interpreted it to empower Mr. Roosevelt to veto industry or nationwide increases resulting from collective bargaining if he chose to do so. The opinion, however, would not extend this power to permit a general freezing of wages and salaries or prevent increases in either that were agreed to voluntarily by both employer and employe.

The war labor board already has suggested as a yardstick for future decisions on demands for higher wages a 15 per cent increase over the level prevailing on Jan. 1, 1941.

Complicating administration efforts to check further increases in farm prices is the specific price law ban on ceilings below 110 per cent of parity, the 1919-1929 average or the levels prevailing last Oct. 1 and Dec. 15, whichever is higher.

WHERE WAS IT?

Police Get Reports of Fight But Can't Find Fighters.

Somewhere on North Main street there was a fight last night. At least, police had three reports within 20 minutes that panzer forces were in action.

First word of a conflict located a battle in the rear of 109 North Main street. Later information placed the battle scene in rear of Chocolate bar, farther north. Third message set the scene in rear of 191 North Diamond street. Patrolmen found no combatants at any of the places.

Lucy Bonds, colored, 191 North Diamond street, became the only casualty of the police search when picked up on the charge of intoxication. One her plea of guilty she was fined $5 and costs Saturday by Municipal Judge G. E. Kaulbfleisch.

Appoint Marshall To Get Testimony For Murder Trial

Attorney Marshall C. Moore today was appointed deposition commissioner to take the testimony of Dr. R. D. Campbell, Mansfield physician on duty with the armed forces in Cleveland, to be used in the trial of John Johnson, Mansfield colored steel worker, charged with second-degree murder.

The trial is scheduled to open Monday morning before a jury in common pleas court. Dr. Campbell, who examined Johnson's wife, Mary, after she was stabbed fatally, will be unable to return to Mansfield for the trial.

Moore will take the deposition at 11 a. m. Sunday in Cleveland. Previously he was appointed by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston to take the testimony of Dr. L. B. McCullough, Richland county coroner, to be submitted at the trial. Dr. McCullough will be unable to appear because of illness.

WEIGH CLOSINGS

COLUMBUS—(INS)—City officials were reported today to be seriously considering closing engine houses Nos. 10 and 12 because of the recent furlough of 142 firemen.

CHURCH TO HOLD OUTDOOR RITES

Members of the Congregational church at Little Washington will hold outdoor worship services tomorrow morning at the Vern Ritchey farm on the Upper Lucas road.

Sunday school classes will meet at 10:30 a. m. followed by the worship service at 11:30. Rev. John Peyton, pastor, will deliver the sermon. A picnic dinner will be held after the services.

While the communique did not mention attacks on the retreating Japanese fleet, it indicated that Allied planes, constantly harassing Japanese barges, stores and installations, meant to give them no rest.

Chungking Bombed 3 Hours, Report

LONDON—(INS)—The Exchange Telegraph company said today that the Vichy radio broadcast a report that the Chinese capital of Chungking had been bombed for three hours Friday.

(The German wireless, reporting a dispatch from Tokyo yesterday, said that Japanese bombers had made a three-hour attack on Chungking Wednesday. There has been no confirmation of this report which apparently is the same put out by the Axis-controlled Vichy station.)

Lesson-Sermon To Be On 'Truth'

"Truth" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in the Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

It will have for the Golden Text: "The word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Hebrews 4:12).

Church Hardships To Be Sermon Basis

Discussing the hardships which the Christian church encountered in its infancy, Rev. J. Campbell White, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, will preach on "The Early Church Thriving Under Threats" tomorrow at 10:30 a. m.

During his sermon Rev. White will relate how the Desciples healed and preached in defiance of threats made against them and will tie in their courage with the kind of fortitude needed by people today.

6 CITIES ADDED

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Canton, Springfield, Hamilton, Middletown, Akron, Toledo and Dayton have been added to the tin can salvage program for householders to meet an expansion from 250,000 to 400,000 tons in detinning plant capacity in the next year.

REMINDED OF DRIVE

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Columbus housewives will be reminded of the current tin can salvage drive by stickers which will be placed on top of all garbage cans in the city by garbage collectors before the can collection begins Aug. 3.

CHURCH HONORS ITS MEMBERS IN ARMED FORCES

Service Flag Symbolic of 40 Men In Service to Be Dedicated Tomorrow.

Forty members of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church who are in the armed services will be honored tomorrow at 9:15 a. m., when a service flag is dedicated.

The flag of 40 stars, one for each service man, will be unveiled as the names of the soldiers and sailors are read. The dedication ceremonies are in charge of the pastor, Rev. Paul H. Saleste.

During the regular worship service at 10:30 a. m., Rev. Saleste will preach on the theme, "Christ, the Citizen." The Junior choir of 30 voices will sing an anthem and the Misses Vera Saleste and Eleanore Young will sing the offertory duet, "Ivory Palaces."

Other meetings to be held next week include St. John's Ladies Guild, 2 p. m. Wednesday, in charge of Mrs. Malvina Damlos; and the official board meeting at 8 p. m., Thursday, with Charles Finifgeld as chairman.

John C. Klinger, director of music, announced that choir rehearsals have been discontinued for the rest of July and August and will be resumed September 1.

Concludes Series of Evening Sermons

Concluding his series of Sunday evening sermons on "The Worst Characters in the Bible," Rev. Grover E. Swoyer will preach on "The Meanest Man in the Bible" tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the First Lutheran church.

The choir quartet will sing special music for the service. Their selections are entitled "Show Me My Task" by Wooler and "Behold a Stranger's at the Door," by Bradbury.

During the morning worship service at 9:45 Rev. Swoyer will use "Free Children of God" as his sermon subject. Horace Braden will sing "The Holy Hour" by Nevin as the offertory solo and James' "Hear My Prayers" will be sung by the choir quartet.

Meeting in the chapel at 7 p. m., members of the Luther league will be led by Mrs. Lester Sharrock in a discussion of the topic, "Lutherans in Madagascar."

Activities on the church calendar for next week are the Earnest Workers, 2 p. m., Monday; and the Lutheran league board 8 p. m., Tuesday.

Church to Have Guest Speaker

In the absence of Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, R. N. McMichael of Lucas, will deliver the sermon tomorrow at 10:30 at the local church.

Scheduled next week is a meeting of the Missionary society at 2 p. m. Wednesday with Mrs. George Schuchman as topic leader and Mrs. Catherine Hahn and Mrs. Harry Widman as hostesses. Women of the church will sew Friday at Red Cross rooms and choir rehearsal will be held at 7 p. m.

First Christian Church Services

Tomorrow at 9 a. m. Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church, will preach on "The Sixth Story in Life's Building." The choir will sing "Lead Us O Father" by Berwald and Mrs. H. H. Clingan, organist, will play Tschaikowsky's "Romance in F Minor."

From Tuesday until next Sunday, Rev. and Mrs. Hagelbarger will be in Grand Rapids, Mich., for the 91st International Convention of Christian churches. Other members of the church planning to attend the conference are Mrs. O. F. Shivley and Mrs. W. J. Tappan.

'New Creation' to Be Pastor's Topic

Concluding church and Sunday school services until Sept. 13, Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will preach on "The New Creation" tomorrow at 10:45 a. m.

Music for the service will feature a quartet anthem entitled, "Like As a Father" by Robinson; and the offertory duet, Brigg's "Hold Thou My Hand" will be sung by Mrs. C. O. Anglin and Leo Hans.

Hold Last Services Until Sept. 13

Holding last church services until Sept. 13, members of the First Congregational church will hear Rev. Peter Young preach on "God's Kind of Security" at 10:45 a. m. tomorrow, at John Simpson Junior high school.

Under the direction of A. LeMoine Derr, the choir will sing "Lead Us, Heavenly Father" by Berwald.

Marchetti's "Lord Most Holy" will be sung by a trio composed of Geraldine Harley, Martha Gergstrom and Frances Carter.

'Sons and Heirs' To Be Sermon Topic

"Sons and Heirs" is the title of Rev. C. A. Portz' sermon tomorrow at 10:30 a. m., at St. Mark's Lutheran church. The choir anthem is entitled, "Lead Kindly Light" by Sullivan.

Lone item on the church calendar for next week is rehearsal of the church choir at 7:30 p. m., Wednesday.

Cleveland Minister to Be In Pulpit For Services at Methodist Church.

Rev. Stanley H. Mullen, pastor of Brooklyn Memorial church in Cleveland, will be guest speaker at the 10:30 a. m. worship service tomorrow at the First Methodist church. His sermon topic will be "The Way Up is Down."

Two solos will be sung by the guest soloist, Miss Wanda Hess. They are entitled "The Lord Is My Shepherd" by Tschaikovsky and "Prayer" by Guion.

Heading next week's activities is the Grace Guild circle picnic at South Park at 6 p. m. Monday. Families have been invited and members are asked to bring meat, covered dish and table service.

The Youth Bible Study group will meet at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday with Wade Pittenger leading a discussion on the Epistles of Peter and John.

Tent Meetings Open Tomorrow

Rev. R. Paul Miller will open a series of nightly tent meetings tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the intersection of Ruth avenue and Wood street. Services will be held each night until Aug. 9.

This is the second annual series of tent meetings sponsored at this location by the Grace Brethren church which has temporary headquarters in the Prospect park recreational building.

Rev. and Mrs. Leo Pollman, known as "The Singing Evangelists," will assist with the musical portion of the services. The Pollmans will not only lead singing but will play religious songs on chimes, vibra-harp and accordion.

Children's meetings for boys and girls of school age will be conducted at 2:30 p. m., each afternoon by Rev. and Mrs. Pollman.

Rev. Miller's sermon subjects for the first four nights are as follows: "Why Doesn't God Do Something," Sunday; "Is the Battle of Armageddon Now Forming?," Monday; "In the Days of the Man of Sin," Tuesday; and "The Greatest Sign of Man's Return." Wednesday.

Delivers Second In Sermon Series

"The Armor of a Christian Soldier" will be the topic of the sermon by Rev. Glenn F. Lewis, rector, at Grace Episcopal church at the 10:45 a. m. service Sunday. This will be the second in a summer series of sermons "On Being a Christian Soldier."

Louise Krause, organist, will play "Prelude" by Corelli and "Prelude and Fugue in E Minor" by Bach for the postlude. The offertory organ solo will be "Adagio" by Corelli.

Holy Communion will be celebrated in the chapel at 8 a. m. and members of the church school will meet with the congregation at 10:45 until the sermon and then go to project classes under the direction of Mrs. Allen Stoodt and Mrs. Wilmot Peirce. Women of the parish will sew in the undercroft Thursday all day for the Red Cross.

'Radiant Life,' Pastor's Topic

Rev. Albert L. Linder, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will use "The Radiant Life" as his sermon subject for the 10:30 a. m., service tomorrow.

A quartet, composed of Miss Edna Boswell, Mrs. Wayne Williams, George Lake and Fred Sutcliffe, will sing "On Life's Highway" by Brown. Miss Boswell and Mrs. Williams will also sing Barri's "The Good Shepherd" as a duet.

Activities scheduled during the week include the Earnest Workers picnic at South park, 6:30 p. m., Tuesday; and the regular Thursday prayer meeting at 7:30 p. m.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, JULY 25, 1942.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and try to make the children understand why they should do the same.

Opponents of the League of Nations contended against "foreign entanglements"—but the alternative isn't so good either.

Our soldiers and sailors can't seem to understand the difference between a "strike" and "cessation of work" in a war industry.

Blame Congressmen, Not 'Congress'

CRITICISM of acts of congress is wrongly interpreted by some congressmen as being criticism of congress as a necessary part of the American form of government—with its three distinct branches—legislative, executive and judicial.

Whatever justification there may be for charges contained in a recent house committee report on "subversive activities aimed at destroying our representative form of government" it should be recognized by congressmen, and readers of adverse criticism of congressional acts, that it is not the intended purposes of congress that are being criticised by loyal Americans but the way in which these lofty purposes are being mishandled by incompetent individuals or minority-inspired blocs devoted to promotion of selfish interests.

It was not congress as an institution that was being rebuked when congressmen voted themselves pensions—and then acceded to public demand by repealing that action—nor was it the institution of congress that brought expressed displeasure over the widespread distribution of "X" cards among congressmen at the start-off of gasoline rationing.

Congress as an institution is not under attack in connection with public displeasure over the way in which the new tax bill is being jockeyed around, nor in criticism of failure of congressmen to act on important war measures before election.

Refusal of a majority in congress to take necessary steps to avoid runaway inflation by putting a ceiling on wages and farm prices is no reflection on congress as such—it merely reveals that the political system by which congress is dominated cannot be put aside easily even under the stress of a devastating war—and that some individual congressmen are more interested in their own re-election than in the fate of the nation.

Congress is an essential part of representative government—it must be maintained . . . and it should be improved.

Asks Relief From Barking Dog

THERE may be many instances of the same sort in Mansfield, but let's take one particular case, as it is brought to attention by a reader.

It's about a barking dog. As this reader tells it, there's a barking dog in the yard next door—a dog that barks regularly early each morning for an hour or more, without restraint on the part of the owner. This complainant is a worker who has only Sunday morning, and an occasional Saturday, for a little extra sleep, and he is robbed of this by the barking dog "right under his bedroom window."

What can be done, he asks. Well, in the first place, the dog should not be blamed. It is instinctive with some dogs to bark—and this is all right at proper times and places.

It is dog owners who are the real culprits in cases of this kind and the law plainly prescribes that no person in Mansfield need be annoyed by "loud, frequent or continued barking, howling or yelping" dogs.

All that need be done, according to the ordinance, is to make complaint to the mayor, or chief of police, by whom the dog owner is to be notified to immediately abate the annoyance complained of. If the annoyance is not stopped "the mayor shall have power to order any of the police officers to put to death any such animals so complained of."

Valuable as dogs may be, and highly as they may be esteemed by their owners, it is quite reasonable to assume that the people of a community have protection against such neighborhood disturbances as are caused by barking and roaming dogs.

Whirlaway Tops Turf Winnings

THERE are Maud S., Equipoise, Gallant Fox, War Admiral Seabiscuit. To this list of famous horses is now added Whirlaway. The 1940 Kentucky Derby winner has just broken the $487,730 record, made by Seabiscuit years ago, for money won on the turf. By winning the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap he brought his total of winnings in two and a half years of racing to $454,336. Now his owner is boasting that Whirlaway will be the first half-million-dollar horse in history.

Like the Derby, in whose 67 years favorites have won only three times, Whirlaway illustrates the ups and downs of the turf, which make it so hard for outsiders to pick winners, and so easy for insiders, if so disposed, to fix things their way. The favorite in the winter preceding the 1940 Derby, Whirlaway lost several minor races to unimportant colts, then turned round and broke the 67-year record for the Derby track. That began his real greatness: he is one of only six horses to win in one year the Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont.

Automobile racing, for all the thrills it can furnish and the crowds it can draw, has never come so close to the public heart as horse racing.

Kitchens Contribute To War Needs

WOMEN are being urged to consider their kitchens as "in the army now." They are to save their tin cans, taking out both ends, removing labels and washing them clean. They are to save their excess fats, putting them into covered bowls, keeping in a cool place, and turning the fats over to their butchers when they have accumulated enough to make it worth while. The family which usually throws down the drain 17 pounds of fat a year can, by turning it in, provide the makings of 85 anti-tank shells or ten pounds of dynamite.

Waste paper is not needed at present, but after the first big supply is used up, it will be needed again. Newspapers and other flat, clean papers are to be kept in piles, and tied up into reasonable armloads. The call will come for them later.

There are plenty of things to be done on the home front. "Use, but do not waste" is the motto of the day.

Here's Why Some Can't Find Jobs

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—A considerable sprinkling of letters from men and women wanting jobs and apparently not having the vaguest notion of how to go about getting them has descended upon the writer since a recent article stating that jobs were crying for men, rather than men for jobs.

It is impossible to answer all these letters personally, and even if it were, no useful purpose would be served. But the letter which caused the most surprise was one from Columbia, South Carolina. The writer has ridden through Columbia four times in the last six weeks, and each time saw evidences of the tremendous activity in that section because of the large military encampment near there.

The point is that anything of this sort results in expanding the ordinary lines of business of a city the size of Columbia to the straining point. It is difficult to figure out why a man willing to work could not find some sort of employment in such a city. Especially a man who has lived there for some time and has friends who know about his ability.

* * *

WHAT is there to be said to a man with such opportunities staring him in the face, but who, apparently helpless, writes to someone hundreds of miles away who knows little or nothing about the opportunities which may exist?

Only this—the same thing which it has been necessary to say to a great many successful but small manufacturers in the country who for two years have been wondering what they could do under present conditions.

The answer to the manufacturers has been "Convert." The answer to the job seeker is the same. The difficulty in bringing about a successful culmination, incidentally, is astonishingly similar.

The little manufacturer has been baffled because what he wanted to do, really, was to go right on doing what he had been doing before the war emergency came. But that is no longer possible. In some instances the war has caused a change in the demand. In many cases the need of the government for materials and skilled labor has slowed down or stopped his operations.

* * *

SO WHAT he must do is to find out what his plant is capable of doing in the war effort. He has known that, but he is not used to thinking on that sort of problem. He does not KNOW what is wanted. No one is less inclined to defend the red tape and stupidity of Washington bureaucracy than the writer. But the officials have something when they say:

"We simply can't go out into the country and wet nurse all these little manufacturers. They must show a little initiative—must find out for themselves what they are capable of doing, and then demand contracts for that. Due to our red tape and lack of experience and half a dozen other reasons, they may find as much trouble selling the government as they did selling their old customers—but they have GOT to take the trouble and do the selling job. No one can help them."

That man wanting a job now has much the same problem. He must stop thinking about a job precisely similar to one that he held in the past. He must figure out what sort of job under the new war conditions he can fill. He is the best judge of that. Then he must go after a job he knows he could do with the same aggressiveness he thinks he would display on that job.

Listen World!

Pull Yourself Up!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FEELING LOW? So do I. So does everyone I know, these days.

Partly, because of the war. Largely, because we've had to get out of our ruts . . . adapt new ways and viewpoints . . . create new programs. All of which is definitely a pain in the neck. And we want to sink back, take it easy. But if we do, we're lost. How do I know? Because I'm that way myself. Time was when we used to sit back at 40 and take it easy in our rocking chairs. And wait for somebody to pin medals on our chests. Now, if you're not doing your stint at 60, you might as well be an enemy alien, shot at sunrise.

We used to have a lot of swell alibis in those days when you and I were kids. Remember "You can't pull yourself up by your own bootstraps?" Of all the infernal lies, that was the worst.

FOR THE ONLY WAY YOU CAN PULL YOURSELF UP IS BY YOUR OWN BOOTSTRAPS. . . . BY THE FORCE AND FIRE YOU HAVE WITHIN YOURSELF.

No one else can do the job for you. You must go ahead on your own steam or you won't go ahead at all. Mom and Dad and Uncle Sam may give you opportunities, but if you haven't the power and hunger in your own self to seize them and make the most of them you're a dead pigeon.

And that's as powerful a truth in 1942 as it was in 1904. Thousands of lives went to waste once, waiting for a fairy godmother to come along and give them a boost. But the really great people, the solid and enduring people, supply their own boost. They don't wait for opportunities; they make 'em. They don't depend on the other fellow's advice; they follow their own hunches. Make mistakes? Of course they do.

BUT A MISTAKE CAN PROVE AS PROFITABLE AS A SUCCESS. IT CAN WISE YOU UP MORE THAN A DOZEN VICTORIES. IT CAN BUILD A NEW DETERMINATION IN YOU, OPEN A NEW HORIZON.

You CAN pull yourself up by your own bootstraps.

You don't have to strike a gold mine or get a doctor's degree. You can dig down into the resources within yourself and lift yourself by your own determination. You have all the makings, if you will use them. You may have lacked a proper environment and education, you may be devoid of "pull," but as long as you respect yourself and long to enlarge yourself you can do so, by pulling on your own bootstraps.

I'm saying this because so many of us are discouraged now, particularly those of us who have passed our first youth. We watch the blazing scene around us and long to be part of it, but we think we've lost our chance.

NO MAN ON EARTH HAS LOST HIS CHANCE IF HIS HEART STILL HUNGERS FOR A NEW TRAIL . . . IF HE'S STILL WILLING TO FACE A NEW ADVENTURE. AND THAT MEANS YOU!

David Belasco, American playwright and theatrical manager, was born at San Francisco on this date in 1859. Drawn to the stage by heritage, Belasco at the age of 29 left San Francisco, having already acted in more than 170 parts and had altered or written more than 100 plays and was responsible director in the production of more than three times that number. For years his productions placed him among the foremost American managers and producers.

Timely Editorial

Tire Restrictions.

The beer trucks got the headlines, naturally, but vehicles used to haul several other non-essential items were included on the list which will no longer be eligible for either new or recapped tires.

As the real seriousness of the rubber shortage becomes more apparent, the list of "essential" vehicles will doubtless grow steadily smaller. Along with the tighter restrictions on eligibility for purchase should go a closer checkup on those who do not get tires, to make sure that they neither waste nor abuse their precious possessions. We are thinking particularly of war industry workers, some of whom forget that they are entrusted with tires so that they may get to their jobs. An authorization to purchase a tire or recap doesn't carry with it a free ticket for excursions to beaches and night clubs.—Akron Beacon Journal.

Words of the Wise

Summary of Week's Happenings

Congress Sidesteps Inflation Curb, Hands Off Wages and Farm Prices

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

WHEN the War Labor Board decided that Little Steel workers were entitled to a 44-cents-a-day wage raise, the decision directly affected only 157,000 workers.

But when labor, industrial, and administration leaders began tossing it around, Americans saw the decision as the hottest economic potato since the war.

The WLB, basing the pay boost on a 15 per cent jump in the cost of living from January, 1941, to May, 1942, offered as a continuing policy the formula it used for arriving at the decision.

Steel unionists (they had asked a $1 increase) protested against the decision. Industrial leaders termed it a "long step toward inflation."

Howl From OPA.

And from the Office of Price Administration came a loud howl that general application of the WLB formula would bring about a general surge of pay raises, cause an increase of "several billion dollars" in national purchasing power that would burst the seams of all existing price control bindings.

The president quickly called in legislative leaders for a conference to discuss curbs on inflation, replied with a flat "no" when asked whether he intended to "freeze wages," and neatly sidestepped a question on whether he intended to ask congress to take that step.

A presidential request for legislation to stabilize wages, it was generally agreed, would start one of the bitterest congressional fights in years. Many congressmen saw bulky, cigar-smoking Leon Henderson, not the wage stabilization program, as the target of such a fight.

Henderson vs. Congressmen.

Wage control legislation, offered as an amendment to the Price Control act, would be subject to hearings by the house banking committee, not too friendly with the OPA chieftain. There was the possibility that reopening of the Price Control act might wind up with Henderson curbed by creation of a price control board to counterbalance him.

Henderson, who has incurred much displeasure among congressmen for his pooh-pooh-on-patronage appointments to big OPA jobs, finally received congressional approval for $120,000,000 to run his outfit this year. He had asked almost twice that much, had had it cut a slow as $75,000,000 at one time.

At Home

Senate's Turn at Tax Bill.

The house, in its final vote of 392 to 2 on the $6,271,000,000 tax bill, indicated it was pretty well satisfied with the result of its long legislative labor.

The senate, receiving the measure for consideration, didn't seem so well pleased. Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) served notice senate Republicans would attempt to "take the bill apart from stem to cudgeon"; some Democratic senators expressed displeasure with certain features. Most certain to be vigorously debated were:

The combined normal and surtax levy of 45 per cent voted by the house on most corporation income. "Too steep," said Finance Committee Chairman George (D., Ga.). "This rate overlooks the fact that many corporations have had no increase in earnings and some of them have had an actual decrease."

The excess profits tax rate of 90%. There would be a proposal, one committee member said, to raise that to 100%, possibly with post-war rebates.

There was comparatively little discussion of the super-high, individual income tax phase of the bill, under which one out of every four persons will have to file this year. Lowered exemptions will create almost 5,000,000 new taxpayers.

Tires for All?

An exhibit in a Washington hotel caused motorists to hope again that their cars wouldn't go on jacks for the duration. The exhibit was sponsored by the rubber industry, which wants to persuade government officials to adopt its plan to provide a two-year supply of tires for everyone. Officials have estimated that it would be at least two years before synthetic production would provide any tires at all for the average autoist.

If all drivers are careful and cut down on their driving, the exhibit contended, 48,174,000 tires in addition to those now on the road would see all drivers through June, 1944.

* * *

Flying Freighters.

Henry J. Kaiser is a man of big ideas. Builder of the Bonneville dam, at present he is astonishing the shipbuilding world by the speed at which he is turning out pre-fabricated merchant vessels on the west coast. Kaiser's big idea during the past week was that nine of the nation's shipyards be converted to produce giant aerial freighters as a solution to the submarine menace. (U. S. shipping losses during the week of July 12 reached their highest level of the war.)

He thought the nine yards should start production at once on an airship soon to be in mass production, the Glenn L. Martin "Mars." It is a flying boat of 70 tons capable of carrying a pay load of 14 tons.

Five thousand of these ships, said Kaiser, could land 500,000 equipped men in England in a single day. No submarine could shoot them down, he said, and with a minimum of protection they couldn't be touched by enemy fighters.

His estimate was that in a year and a half the nine shipyards could be producing 360 a month.

Abroad

Terrible Days.

"Terrible days face the country. The enemy is rushing to the vital centers of our country."

So did Red Star, Russian army organ, describe the situation as Hitler's million-man army roared across the blazing wheat fields, the dynamited coal mining areas of the Don basin.

From three points the invaders aimed fast-moving, seemingly endless forces at Rostov, western key to the Caucasus.

Marshal Timoshenko's tactics seemed to point to a desperate stand along the great bend of the Don, one end of his line anchored at Rostov, the other northwest of Stalingrad.

Meanwhile the Russians had another worry. London sources reported that Japan had a half-million men about ready for an attack on Siberia's maritime province, Valdivostok and other Siberian points. The source said that if necessary the Japanese could "press the button and start to move into Siberia."

* * *

More Rommel Tricks.

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel is as full of tricks as a magician's bag, loves to live up to his "Fox of the Desert" nickname.

British engineers, setting out to blow up bomb-shattered German tank derelicts in Egypt, discovered that the Fox had planted good tanks among the hulks. English anti-tank guns opened up, smashed several of the sleepers.

It was evident that the Fox is still as tricky as ever—but that the British, after many painful lessons, know it. They kept cracking away at Rommel and his supply lines, seemingly bent on wearing him down to where there would be no kick in his trickery.

Planes and guns of the fleet banged away unmercifully at Matruh, most advanced Nazi supply port. U. S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators, working under ideal conditions in the cloudless desert skies, helped the RAF in smashes at Tobruk.

Aleutian Score: Add Three.

The game of blindman's bluff continued in the fog-shrouded Aleutians. U. S. submarines managed to grope their way to Kiska Harbor and sank three Japanese destroyers. This brought to a total of 18 the Japanese warships sunk or damaged in Japan's ambitious bid for Alaska.

The enemy now is installed in temporary living quarters on Attu, Kiska and Agattu, at the western tip of the Aleutian chain, all undefended. Eight of the ships actually sunk were destroyers. American forces against them must operate mainly from Dutch Harbor 800 miles away.

Quotes

Alfonso Lopez, Colombian president-elect, suggests a league of American nations: "A good neighbor policy already has had a decade of serious and respectable expression, so that it is now recognized as not an opportunistic policy, but as one backed by public opinion."

Col. Don C. Faith to the new WAAC: "Back when Joshua marched around Jericho seven times, his men had to eat in order to march. You always have to take care of the army. That's what we will learn to do here."

People

'Activities' Men and Brains.

Are "activities" men in college brighter than those collegians who stick to their studies and shun sports, managerships, clubs, student politics, dramatics and publications?

Dr. Wendell Bash, Colgate sociologist, says they aren't. In a four-year survey he found that students with no extra-curricular activities had an I.Q. 3.5% above the group average. Publications men, however, were 16% above the group average. But men in major sports were 11% below.

Filmdom's 'Foreigners.'

Glamorous Margaret Lindsay was born on an unglamorous Iowa farm. So she went to London, developed a British accent, returned to America and fooled everyone to win a place in films. Likewise Sigrid Gurie was born in hardly-glamorous Brooklyn. She went abroad and came back a glamorous Norwegian.

But sultry Burnu Acquanetta was the first original American to pull the trick. She was winning fame with Universal studio as the "Venezuelan Volcano" when asked for her passport as she registered with an actors' agency. She confessed she was a full-blooded Arapahoe Indian and that she had never seen Venezuela. She had taught herself a Spanish accent.

In Short

Passed: A bill outlawing what was termed the "iniquitous" practice of collecting commission fees on government contracts, by the house. It was disclosed in testimony that agents had become enormously wealthy by securing war contracts for firms.

Named: Admiral William D. Leahy, as Commander-In-Chief Roosevelt's chief of staff. As such Leahy, recently ambassador to Vichy, will be FDR's right-hand man in prosecuting the global war on the land and sea and in the air. The move was unprecedented.

Jolted: The Japanese, in their major drive to capture Chekiang and Kiangsi provinces, when the Chinese made a smashing comeback by recapturing the Chekiang seaports of Wenchow and Juian and breaking the invaders' grip on the Kiangsi railway along a 15-mile stretch.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Here's a note on one of the shortest and richest streets in New York. It cuts through leased ground. It is fronted by banks, publishers, cash register companies, and representatives of foreign governments.

The name of this street is Rockefeller Plaza. Its numbers run from 9 to 50. It begins at 49th street and ends at 51st street, and it lies between Fifth and Sixth avenues.

The Associated Press building is on Rockefeller Plaza. So is the RCA building. So is the Time & Life building. And the International building. Also Eastern Airlines.

* * *

FROM high on the tenth floor of No. 10 Rockefeller Plaza emanate the theatrical enterprises of Noel Coward, whose partner and representative, John C. Wilson, ex-Yaler, has his offices there. Into the Plaza each day comes Lowel Thomas, whose offices are at 50 Rockefeller Plaza. In the space of a few weeks I have seen the former Wallis Warfield, a former Democratic presidential nominee (Al Smith), a Republican ex-President (Hoover), a hundred Hollywood picture names, half a dozen ranking generals, and the representatives of the United Nations walking in the Plaza. It's quite a street. It has an unmistakable air of respectability. It's well-bred. No murder has ever been committed there.

But, the city of New York no more owns Rockefeller Plaza than I do. It belongs to Columbia university. It isn't a city-built thoroughfare. The Rockefellers built it, and the trustees of the university permit its use by pedestrians through sufferance only.

Rockefeller Center is built on leased ground. The lease is for 99 years. When the center was built, a street had to be built so that an adequate communications and traffic system could be set up.

* * *

BUT one day each year the trustees of Columbia university take time out to remind the people of New York that they, and no one else, control the Plaza. White ropes block off traffic. The doors of all buildings on the street are bolted. Guards patrol the precinct, and in the center of each opening is a large sign that states:

"This street is closed to public use on behalf and in the name of the trustees of Columbia university in the city of New York."

Buried in the asphalt at each end of the Plaza is a metal plaque that says: "Property line of the trustees of Columbia university. Crossing is by permission only, which permission is revocable at will."

So long as the university closes off the street from public use for one day out of each year, the street will remain the property of the university.

If they neglect to do it, the street automatically becomes city property.

So far, the trustees have been right on the job.

AWAIT FEDERAL MEDIATOR IN GALION STRIKE

Expect Government to Look Into Labor Dispute at North Electric.

GALION—Entering the third day on strike employes of the North Electric Manufacturing company here have refused to resume work at the plant which manufactures vital government communications equipment.

Company officials said today that the plant was not closed and the workers were free to return to work any time. E. O. Link said, "we are inviting the people back to work. There is no lockout. We are anxious to resume production."

A conciliator from the Department of Labor is expected to arrive here within a few days.

GALION — Four Galion boys were injured, two seriously late Thursday. Two of the bicycle riders, Robert Fabian, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Fabian, and James Gerhardt, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Gerhardt, were taken to the city hospital.

The accident occurred on the Winchester road, three miles west of the city. Police said they were struck by a car driven by Robert Manring, 17, who said he was driving with his dim lights and that the boys were riding four abreast when his car struck the two bicycles on the south side of the road. Charles Monroe, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Monroe, and Clarence Muth, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Muth, escaped serious injury.

Gerhardt received fractures of the right wrist and lower left arm, plus numerous body bruises. Fabian suffered a fractured right elbow and numerous body and head bruises.

STARTS CHECK ON USE STAMPS

Auto Tax Sales Spurt as Drivers Get Summonses For Violations.

Check-up of Mansfield parking lots Friday by R. F. Rehm of Akron, deputy internal revenue collector, to determine violations of federal use tax stamp display regulations, resulted in a sudden spurt of stamp sales at the postoffice.

Announcement of penalties for failure of motorists to display use stamps on the inner and lower right corner of windshields was transmitted yesterday to Charles S. Mosey, deputy collector for the Mansfield area, from the Cleveland office of the internal revenue bureau.

Rehm attached summonses to vehicles not properly displaying use tags but did not report the number issued. Owners will be allowed 10 days in which to obtain the $5 stamps. Failure to do so may result in a fine of $25.

More than 50 stamps were sold after Rehm's investigation, according to Postmaster Herman E. Homberger. Sales had dwindled since the first of the month, he said, but a decided gain is anticipated in face of the penalty regulations.

Slight monthly decreases in stamp cost are provided under the law.

SOYBEAN PRODUCERS CONCERNED ABOUT LACK OF STORAGE SPACE

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO — While soybean harvest will not get underway until autumn, producers are already wondering what they are going to do with the crop. From all information now available, it appears that they will have to store a good part of it on farms.

Heavy wheat production has made regular storage space scarce, if not non-existent, and it won't be possible to use railroad cars for that purpose, as has been done in the past, because the need for cars to transport war goods is urgent and probably will become more acute in the autumn.

Add the increased soybean acreage to these factors, trade observers said today, and storage on farms appears to be the only solution. Visible supply of soybeans last week totaled 1,101,000 bushels against 918,000 bushels a year ago.

Observers said cribs, bins, stalls, silos, garages and even unoccupied buildings in towns may be used for storage if they can be made grain-tight and water, chicken, bird and rat proof.

It was asserted, however, that beans of high moisture content will constitute a special problem. Such beans probably will have to be dried on the farm.

Bean futures prices underwent a sharp break on Thursday and Friday of this week. Thursday was the last day of trading in July contracts, and a small amount of liquidation in that month forced quotations more than 4 cents lower. This apparently unnerved longs in other contracts, because selling on Friday dropped these quotations 2¾ to 3 cents.

There is considerable uncertainty as to what the final developments will be from conferences between officials of the department of agriculture and trade interests. These conferences are scheduled for the latter part of this month. Trade interests expect government agencies will buy at least a portion of the soybean crop, but the system of disposing of supplies remains to be settled.

In the wheat pit, traders said the next thing to look for is the springwheat movement, which will be developing within another week or ten days.

Modern Miller, trade publication, said that hot weather early in the week failed to have much effect on spring wheat except in eastern Montana, where there was some damage. Harvesting is expected to become fairly general in about three weeks, although advanced sections will start combing before that period.

WILL BE QUIET

Primary to Attract Only 700,000 Ohioans, Report.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—George M. Neffner, elections authority in the office of Secretary of State John E. Sweeney, today predicted that only about 700,000 Ohioans will go to the polls at the August primaries. This, he said, is less than half the total number of votes cast in the 1938 and 1940 state primary elections.

Neffner says that according to his figures, the primary this year will be the quietest in the 30 years of primary voting in the state.

The balloting will take place Aug. 4, and as yet, from all indications, there has not been and probably will not be any campaign excitment, despite the fact that there are several interesting contests including the five-man race for the Democratic nomination for governor.

ASKS POST-WAR ECONOMIC PLAN

Sir Stafford Cripps Quotes FDR and Hull Speeches.

LONDON —(AP)— Sir Stafford Cripps, lord privy seal, told British scientists today that the United Nations "must at the end of the war undertake international regulation of the production and distribution of the essential raw materials."

"We must turn our machinery of economic warfare into one of economic welfare," Cripps said in an address to the British association for the advancement of science.

Quoting passages from addresses of President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and other United States officials and Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, Cripps added his own views to the diagram for a post-war world.

ADULTS GRAB BIKES

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Tire-rationed adults outbid youngsters for 54 bicycles in the biggest police auction in the city's history yesterday. Children never had a chance as bikes which ordinarily would have sold for a few dollars brought $17 to $33. They were unclaimed vehicles recovered by police after being lost or stolen.

Five More Arrests Put Patrol Record Above Figures for '41

Despite the war-caused drop in traffic, 1942 state highway patrolmen lifted total arrests for July well past figures for the same month last year when they arrested five motorists for speeding on Mansfield area highways last night.

Patrolmen reported 87 arrests for traffic violations to date this month as compared with 81 for July of 1941. Forty-nine of this month's offending motorists were charged with speeding.

Total arrests so far in 1942, however, are still below 1941 figures.

The large number of arrests are attributed by Corp. C. W. Cale, head of the Mansfield substation, to a larger staff of men which makes possible increased patrol duty. Six patrolmen are now stationed at the Mansfield post. There were only four and sometimes five on duty here last year.

Another factor is that with decreased traffic and the majority of motorists driving more conservatively, speeders and other violators are a lot easier to spot, Cale said.

Four of the drivers arrested last night posted $16.30 bond and waived appearance in municipal court today. They were Claude L. Humphrey, 19, of Akron; Ray Caldwell, 43, of Mattoon, Ill.; Vaughn W. Fletcher, 23 of Akron; and Dennie J. McAuley, 24, of Pittsburgh, Pa. The other driver, Joseph H. Miller, 22, of Mansfield R. D. 4, was cited to appear in municipal court Monday.

MANSFIELD BUSINESS IN REVIEW

REPAIRS VITAL TO HOMES FOR WARTIME USE

U. S. Urges Maintenance of Residences To Make Them Liveable.

Essential repairs and maintenance are vital to the preservation of American home properties in sound, livable condition during wartime, Federal Housing Commissioner Abner H. Ferguson, declared today.

Because of the urgent need for conserving critical war material, new home construction has been sharply curtailed and the war housing projects now being built are of necessity reserved to meet the needs of the most essential war industry workers, Ferguson said.

"This condition makes it all the more imperative that our supply of existing houses be kept in adequate repair, conforming to decent standards of sanitation and health," the commission asserted. "For the great majority of American families, these existing houses will represent the only housing available for the duration of the war."

In carying out its wartime program of repair loan insurance under Title 1 of the National Housing Act, the Federal Housing Administration is stressing that purely luxury repairs or luxury remodeling should be postponed until after the war.

However, essential repairs necessary for sanitation or health, or for preventing decay and deterioration in existing properties are considered appropriate purposes for loans insured under this phase of the FHA program.

If undertaken promptly, essential work of this kind usually requires the outlay of only relatively small sums, which will be repaid many times over by maintenance of values and by avoidance of the major repairs that would otherwise be required later on.

Under the War Production Board's Construction Conservation Order L-41, maintenance work and essential repairs that do not change structural design are permitted without further authorization, provided the work does not involve purchase of critical materials for which a WPB preference rated order is required. Where a preference rating is needed, application can be made in the regular manner.

Loans to finance repairs may be secured under the Title 1 program in amounts up to $2,500 from qualified lending institutions in all parts of the country. Such loans are repaid in equal monthly payments, with maximum terms being subject to the provisions of the Federal Reserve Board's Regulation W.

The Title I program also permits loans for remodeling or converting existing structures in the designated war industry areas to provide additional living accommodations for war workers.

Mansfield Provident Company Helps to Win War In Many Ways

Loan Firm Finances Needs of Defense Workers

New life blood for the wartime industrial drive in Mansfield and surrounding communities is flowing through the offices of the Mansfield Provident company, 18 West Third street.

The war is being fought on many fronts and not the least of these is the economic front which is strengthened daily through services given by the personal finance program of the Mansfield Provident.

"Personal finance is playing an important part in the war," says H. E. Amsbaugh, general manager of the company. "We have helped men move to defense work areas—in moving expenses and transportation for their families."

Helps Win War.

Personal finance has helped solve various war problems, according to Amsbaugh. It has helped war workers get back and forth from their defense jobs by financing auto purchases, tires, and auto repairs. In some cases, the loan company has advanced money so skilled workmen can pay union dues and go back to work.

"We have financed welding, riveting, aircraft and many other courses," continued Amsbaugh. "We have financed the purchase of tools. We have kept men in good health by financing medical costs, hospitalization, the purchases of glasses or other health needs. We have financed trips for parents to see their sons at army camps and for sons to return home on furloughs. This last measure helps to maintain morale."

The Mansfield Provident company was established 26 years ago and is Mansfield's oldest loan company. It specializes in personal loans, ranging from $5 to $1,000. Loans are made for consolidating debts, purchasing consumer goods, for medical or funeral expenses and for business reasons.

Consolidates Debts.

The company emphasized the importance of consolidating debts. It points out that the government has asked workers to get rid of their debts as soon as possible in order to have their funds free to invest in war bonds.

"In consolidating their debts," says Amsbaugh, "people group them in one sum and get rid of them easier. Installment buying is being discouraged and it is more important than ever to get out of debt."

Mansfield Provident maintains a girls' softball team which has won championships for the past two years and has provided relaxation and entertainment for Mansfield residents.

The company prides itself on the loyalty of customers to the concern. Parents using its service have seen their children also select it because of its past services.

In addition to its Mansfield office, the company maintains branch offices at Shelby and Ashland.

Local Corporation.

The company is a local corporation, has local stockholders and had Mansfield businessmen serving on its board of directors. Because its organization is solely located in this area, it is not necessary for delay in having loans approved by headquarters in other cities.

The Mansfield Provident operates under a license from the state department of commerce and operates under its rates and regulations.

"We are glad to be of service in helping with the war effort," says Amsbaugh, "and are using our influence to control excessive credit extension and to budget advice to conform with a sound economy designed for a better post-war period."

Sell Old Records, Get War Stamps to Help Win the War

Mansfielders are being given an opportunity to help Uncle Sam win the war in a double-barreled program to get old phonograph records.

If you have any old records around the house, you can help ease a shellac shortage prompted by military demands on the regular supply and at the same time get defense stamps to help finance this country's defense.

The Smart Music shop at 6 South Main street is offering two cents for each old phonograph record you bring in to them. Only Columbia, Okeh and Edison records are excepted.

If you prefer, you can get defense stamps instead of cash for every 10 records you bring in to Smart's.

CONSIDERS LILY SANCTUARY

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—(U.P.)—Utah's state flower, the Sego lily, that once bloomed wild and densely over the entire state, is disappearing. It is vanishing so fast, in fact, that the park commissioner here is considering establishment of a Sego lily sanctuary.

TEXAS BEAUTY IS BRIDE OF LT. JAMES M'ILYAR

Miss Ollie Sue Armstrong and Air Corps Flying Instructor Exchange Vows July 4 In New Mexico; Live In Texas.

MANSFIELD friends of Lieut. James Diamond McIlyar, son of W. V. McIlyar, 81 Dawson avenue, will be interested to learn of his marriage to Miss Ollie Sue Armstrong, daughter of Mrs. Eula Armstrong of San Angelo, Tex. The couple exchanged nuptial vows at Clovis, N. M., on July 4. Rev. W. G. Bailey, a Methodist minister, performed the ceremony in his home.

The bride was pictured in Life and Look magazines last year as one of the 50 most beautiful American college girls of 1941. Miss Armstrong was a campus beauty queen during the three years that she attended the Texas Technological school at Lubbock. She is a member of the San Souci social club.

A recent issue of Life magazine contained a six-page illustrated story featuring the bridegroom as a "typical flying cadet." A graduate of Galion high school, he spent his time at the McIlyar home here during Miami university vacations. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta, national fraternity, and was graduated from Miami in 1939.

Lieutenant McIlyar was assigned, upon receipt of his Army Air Corps silver wings, to the advanced air base school at Lubbock Field, Tex., where he is an instructor for multi-motored planes. The newlyweds are residing at 2826 Twenty-Seventh street in Lubbock.

Wed Yesterday

Bride of yesterday is Miss Miriam Durig, who exchanged vows with Robert Gundlach at 9:30 a. m., in St. Peter's Catholic church. She is the daughter of Mrs. Miriam Durig, 91 West Dickson avenue. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Gundlach, reside in Sandusky. The couple will make their new home at 807 West Adams street, Sandusky.

Luncheon Given At Petri Home

Cottage Garden club members were entertained Friday at the home of Mrs. J. H. Petri, 555 Yale drive. Associate hostess was Mrs. T. J. Patton. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock from a table decorated with snapdragons and gysophilia. Mrs. Frank Forshee and Miss Florence Gernhart presided at the table.

The program was in charge of Mrs. J. B. Conard, who requested members to give reminiscences of their favorite childhood trees. A paper on "Oaks" was read by Mrs. Conard. Mrs. H. G. Miller showed a small-table arrangement of fruits on a mirror plaque. The next meeting will be in the form of a breakfast on Aug. 21. The place will be announced later.

LUNCHEON PLANNED

Temple Emanuel Sisterhood will have a covered-dish luncheon Tuesday at 1 p. m at the home of Mrs. Norman Kann, 564 Hawthorn Lane.

Herbs Discussed On Club Program

Hostess to members of the Linnaeus Garden club at her Lexington avenue home on Friday, was Mrs. S. E. Taylor. Mrs. Herman Clingan gave a talk on "Southern Wood." A discussoin of food recipes using herbs was led by Mrs. W. F. Fisher, who also presented an interesting original story about a family that had used herbs in recipes.

Red Cross sewing was done and articles were made for the Great Lakes Naval Training school hospital. Plans were made to have a flower show and guest day tea on Aug. 28 at the home of Mrs. Frank Glasgow, Cook road. Mrs. Ray Hammer will entertain the club on Aug. 14.

SUMMER MEETINGS ENDED.

The Pin Pal club met yesterday at the home of Mrs. Richard Parkison, R. D. 6. A nutrition demonstration was held at noon. Six members and two guests, Mrs Walter Kelly and Miss Kelly were present. It was decided to disband meetings until further notice.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Garden Club Has Book Review by Mrs. W. Peirce

Mrs. Clay Noel, 457 Davis road, was hostess yesterday to the Town and Country Garden club. Sixteen members were present and the business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Ralph Emerson, president. Welcomed as a new member was Mrs. R. C. Fetterman.

Luncheon was served at a long table attractively decorated with garden flowers. Mrs. Robert Nichols, a former member, presided. During the business meeting discussion of the flower show, which the club will have Aug. 28, was held. They also talked about the school gardens.

Mrs. Wilmot Peirce gave a book review on "Pandora's Box." It dealt with problems of the destruction of our natural resources and the conservation program of our government. The next meeting will be Aug 14 with Mrs. George Price at the C. L. Mitchell farm.

Dinner Given In Honor of Nurse Leaving for Duty

Mrs. Donald Lance Snyder gave a farewell dinner at the Council Guest House Thursday evening in honor of Miss Ann Menrath, who has joined the Navy Nurses Corps and is leaving the city in the near future.

Dinner was served at a long table and the color scheme was in patriotic colors. The centerpiece was an Uncle Sam hat filled with blue and white garden flowers and red roses. The hat was surrounded by a miniature fleet of ships. Favors were hats fashioned after the centerpiece and made into lapel pins.

After the dinner Miss Menrath was presented with many lovely gifts. Bridge was played and the prizes were awarded to the Misses Rita Newcomer, Helen Harnett and Mary Turrich, who in turn gave their awards to the honoree. Miss Menrath is a graduate of Mansfield General hospital and has been supervisor of the first floor.

ALPHA NU OMEGA SORORITY.

A meeting was held Thursday evening at the home of Miss Mary Rabel, 93 Orchard street by the Alpha Nu Omega sorority. After a brief business session games were played. Prizes went to the Misses Mary Pinka and Jean Griffith. Refreshments were served later in the evening at a long table decorated with a floral centerpiece. The next meeting will be Aug. 6 at the home of Miss Marjorie Schnug.

Nancy Then and Now

NANCY COLEMAN—as a grown-up—astonishingly resembles herself when knee-high-to-a-grasshopper. Acclaimed for her performance in Warners' "Kings Row" Nancy has since been featured in "The Gay Sisters" and in "Desperate Journey."

BIRTHDAY DINNER

The July circle of the Rain or Shine Sunday school class of the South Main Street Evangelical church had a surprise birthday dinner Friday at the home of Mrs. Estella Solomon honoring Mrs. Essie Bell. Twelve members and six guests were present. Mrs. Bell was repicient of gifts and there was a gift exchange. The class teacher is Mrs. B. A. LaFevre. Mrs. W. F. Frickman is president.

* * *

U-NAME-IT-CLUB

Thirteen members of the U-Name-It- club met in South park Wednesday evening for a covered-dish supper. Mrs. Mary Henne was a guest. Bunco was played at the home of Mrs. L. M. Swartzwalder, Westwood avenue. Mrs. Mary Winebrenner and Mrs. Donna Oswalt won the high and low score prizes, respectively. The guest also received a award. Mrs. Rex Faust, Boston avenue, will be hostess to the club on Aug. 26.

SORORITY PICNIC

Gamma chapter of Tri Gamma sorority had a picnic and swimming party Thursday at North Lake park. Mrs. Kenneth Heilman was a guest. The group later attended a theater. The next regular meeting will be held in the clubroom on July 30.

ONE-DISH MEAL

Corned stuffed meat loaf is something new, appetizing and interesting to make. Pat our seasoned, chopped uncooked meat until about ½ inch thick on waxed paper. Cover with an inch layer of seasoned, drained, canned corn. Roll up like a jelly roll and quickly place in greased loaf pan or baking dish. Bake as for usual meat loaf. Serve hot with savory mushroom or tomato sauce. And the corn can pinch hit for starchy vegetable served with the meal. So here is a dish with a double purpose—one of the "meat and potato" kind.

COOLING DRINK

For a quick come-back after a busy day take some chilled gingerale added in equal portions to iced fruit juices. This is just sweet enough and will not take off too much of the edge from dinner.

STAGE OUTING

GALION — Hamilton Park in Crestline was the scene of a picnic Friday by members of the Gleaners class of the First Baptist church. Games and contests were enjoyed.

Every time a ton of scrap iron or steel is used, more than four tons of iron ore, coal, limestone and other natural resources are saved.

Mansfield Garden Club Has Picnic At Perl's Home

The Mansfield Garden club met yesterday noon to have a picnic at the home of Mrs. Leo Perl, 384 Sturges avenue. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Scott Coffin, Mrs. Wallace Campbell and Mrs. Charles Schroer. Mrs. Frederick Crouse was in charge of the program.

A lovely luncheon was served in the garden under an apple tree. The long table was attractively decorated with an arrangement of vegetables taken from Mrs. Perl's victory garden. Members also had samples of the vegetables.

A game of scrambled flowers was played and the women were instructed to make names of flowers from the jumble of letters. Prize winners were Mrs. Fred Wolfe and Mrs. William Bowers. Next meeting will be August 7 at the Women's Club. Mrs. Victor Smith and Mrs. Paul Bovard will be hostesses for the luncheon.

Hungarian Supper Enjoyed by Club

The Banquet club held a meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. Dorothy George, Park avenue west. She entertained with a garden party and served a lovely Hungarian supper later in the evening. Appointments were in green and white with a centerpiece of flowers.

During the business meeting it was decided to take a trip sometime next month. Bunco was played at four tables with prizes being awarded to Mrs. Mary Howell, Mrs Margaret Thatcher, Mrs. Mildred Jordan. Mrs. Eva Swallow was awarded the guest prize. Next meeting will be a bum's party at the Armstrong pool, South Main street road, on Aug. 6.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, July 26

SUNDAY'S horoscope points to romance and adventure, as its outstanding significance, although this may not relate entirely to the affectional or social life. However, it also may carry dangers of excess, squandering and indulgence in the emotional and creative expression. Shun extravagance.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of change, romance and adventure, although not exclusively in an emotional or affectional phase. The same astral influence inspires and stimulates many forms of novel, original and creative expression. Shun squandering of substance or energies.

A child born on this day may be disposed to extravagance and excess although early training might turn its excellent creative ability into productive channels.

For Monday, July 27

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of sudden and surprising developments, with romance, change, travel and adventure probably leading to high places in public service. If properly managed this should be a bewildering spurt in the direction of achievement. The danger is in permitting the impulses to prevail.

Those whose birthday it is may stand at the threshold of a year of exciting, breathtaking experiences, in romance, adventure, or the emotional nature. This should advance business or creative expression to surprising culminations in the public eye.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES C. LINTON, 359 West Fifth street, have returned from a motor trip through Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia. Their daughter-in-law, Mrs. L. D. Stahl, accompanied them to Little Rock, Ark., where she and her husband will reside. Mr. Stahl has been transferred there from Kansas City, Mo. Plans of the Lintons to visit their son, Ralph B. Stahl, at Camp Wallace, Tex., were cancelled because he expected to be moved to another camp.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. James Russell and family are spending a week's vacation at North Houghton lake, Roscommon, Mich. . . . Miss Patricia Quinby of the South Side hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa., has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Boyle, Bowman street.

* * *

VISITORS at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Rachel, Sturges avenue, are Mrs. John Rachel, jr., and little daughter, Patty Jo. Mr. Rachel, jr, is stationed at an army camp in South Carolina. . . . Mrs. Pearle Boyle of Harrisburg, Pa., and Mrs. Roger Wyland of Altoona, Pa., are visiting their sisters, Mrs. W. J. Boyle, Bowman street, and Mrs. Norman Boone, Springmill street. They will return to their homes today.

Delegates Report On Convention

The home of Miss Loretta Derr, Park avenue west, was the scene Thursday of a meeting of the Soroptimist club members. Miss Mabel Selfe, president, conducted the business session. A number of members responded to the request for volunteer workers at the hospital. A report was given on the club's activity in the sale of war stamps and bonds.

Mrs. Zora Weimer and Mrs. Corrine Mowry gave interesting accounts of the week's convention of the international organization which was held recently in Cleveland. They illustrated their reports with photographs of convention scenes. The next meeting will be held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel on Aug. 4.

SIMPLE STRAINING

Strain drippings from meat through a cloth rinsed out of cold water (this makes the straining easier.) Cool, cover, store in the refrigerator and use as desired.

GOLF AT WESTBROOK

The annual handicap tournament for Westbrook women golfers will be continued on Tuesday, "Ladies' Day." For those not playing in matches, games may be prearranged or planned at the club Tuesday morning.

Mrs. F. Kleer Gives Shower

Miss Charlotte Jennings, who will become the bride of Charles Wolfe tomorrow afternoon at the Mayflower Congregational church, was honored last evening with a personal shower given by Mrs. Frank Kleer, Coolridge Heights.

Games and contests were played with Mrs. Theodore Hemperly, Mrs. Charles Wolfe and the honoree winning prizes. Refreshments were served at a small table having red and white appointments. The hostess presented the bride with a personal gift. Another shower will be held this evening for the bride-elect at the home of Mrs. Hemperly, 21 Arnold avenue.

CHAPTER XI

The half-breed clutched Gordon viciously by the shoulder

"How I know?" he gritted. "You maybe tell lies!"

"Here are the keys of the house—I didn't break in See Pearman's name on the tag?"

The sharp eyes studied the keys for a moment, and the name-plate attached to them

Reluctantly, the gun disappeared into a hip pocket of dirty blue dungarees. "Meester, I am sorry. I 'pologize. You should not make like robber, and come in here alone; you should ask me first. I theenk you come to take sometming. Come downstairs, please, I fix your head.

The half breed led Gordon into the kitchen of the house, and fetched water, clean cloth and iodine.

Gordon winced as the iodine bit into the bump on the back of his head. The half-breed grinned, showing yellow teeth.

"The medicine, she bite like rattlesnake, no?"

"Like two rattlesnakes, yes"

The man's name was Chino.

"You like house? You buy house?" he asked.

"Perhaps. I don't know yet. You know Mr. Morley?"

"Yes, senor."

"Mrs. Morley?"

"Yes," Chino laughed unpleasantly.

"You shouldn't laugh, Chino, at a dead woman!"

"Ha-ha-she in beautiful coffin." Chino continued to laugh.

"I tell you to stop laughing!"

"Her ghost come back often. Thees very bad house."

"That room where you hit me. That was Mrs. Morley's bedroom?"

"Yes, senor. That is the first time I go in that room for much long time."

"So you're afraid of ghosts? Why, what's the matter with Mrs. Morley's bedroom?" Gordon inquired.

"Very unluckee room, Meester. Room of dead." Chino said solemnly.

"Oh, you're superstitious too," said Gordon with derision, trying to coax him on.

"No, no meester. I speak truth. That is room of dead. First her parrot, she die there, then Mrs. Morley's two dogs they die. Then Mrs. Morley herself, she die—all in same room! 'One, two, three! Four!"

* * *

Gordon backed his car out of the driveway entrance, swung south on Callada road, leading to Denver town center.

He switched on his dim lights, leaned back wearily, letting a cigaret hang from his tired lips. Its smoke burned his eyes and nose, he spat it out angrily, turned on the radio to a blast of scat music, strangled the knob—gave his attention to the circuitious double lane road leading him toward the mountain capital.

"Circuitious, my God, it's like my mind, the maze of the Minotaur," Gordon said to himself. "Dead brick walls at every turn. And it seems to me that you, Gordon, my boy, have had another idea that fizzled. You have a happy faculty for getting notions that waste your time. 'Find Cora Leroy' was your first breathless inspiration, so what? Then Alvin Oliver, Audrey's unpleasant butler, slips into your puzzle and throws a dash of the incongruous into the whole design, and you are so delighted you cannot sleep. Morley and Oliver; Two of them, 'Thick as two ticks on a sheep.'" Gordon recited the words of the bartender at the Gold Nugget. "If you had a brain in your skull you'd have a dozen theories on the reason for a friendship like that. And you haven't one good one"

"Gordon, lad, you should have taken one of those correspondence courses in detective work—as a detective everything you do comes out defective."

He re-entered the city by the same road, lit now by night lights, turned at the county building, looming huge and gray in the clear air.

"Thanks, son. I don't want to read anything more about Denver. I'm leaving town tonight."

"Well, you can look at the funnies, can't you?" was the flip answer.

Gordon drove his car to his hotel garage, left instructions to let newswriter Hob Cresswell have it the following morning.

At the bar he stopped for a spot of brandy and soda, a bracer he needed.

The bartender inquired in friendly fashion about the bump on his forehead.

"Unrequieted love," answered Gordon despondently.

"That's a new one for me," answered the bartender. "So this last drink's on me."

The spectacled desk clerk was sad to hear Gordon was checking out. The management had enjoyed Mr. Lewis' stay, and hoped the feeling had been mutual. He hinted delicately that some time Mr. Lewis might mention the Denver House in his magazine stories.

"Of course I will. Will you call the airport for a single seat going east? I'll be in my room. Let me know what you get."

"There's been a call came from Mr. Pearman, the real estate office, Mr. Lewis," said the clerk.

"Forget it," snapped Gordon.

"Very well, Mr. Lewis, I'll try to arrange for the midnight plane. Shall I have a taxi ready for you? I suggest you leave about 11:30. That will give you ample time."

"Double check," said Gordon, already headed across the lobby to the yawning elevator.

* * *

The Denver House corridor was like a cavern, the heavy carpeting mossy; Gordon's room was warm and oppressive.

He lay down, relaxed on the bed, face turned to the dresser where a small alarm clock was nipping away the time, with hands pointing to 9:30.

Facing the clock was the silent framed photograph of Audrey; lips provocative, eyes bright and questioning. Gordon wished it were 11:30, and he rushing like a comet toward her.

"And when I am riding toward her, where would that be tonight? he thought, "Moonhollow, of course, the roses. Long Island Sound . . . I'll kick Mr. Alvin Oliver out, that's certain . . . dispose of him the first thing. How did that note I wrote when I left, strike her?"

"Audrey," he said to the picture, "I've just been a jealous fool. It's been a waste of time to leave you. I feel your Clifford Morley is quicksand—treacherous, like an undertow. I'd give everything I am to make you believe that, Audrey, but I never will, Audrey. I can't!"

Her eyes in the photo seemed fathomless. He turned the picture so it would face him and watch over him like a good fairy while he slept.

He finished the last piece on Denver he was writing for the magazine, typed his date line and "30," stuck the script into a manila envelope, placed it in the bottom of his bag, his suit on that, his blue oxford shirt; cuff links and striped tie; glanced through empty closets and dresser drawers, placed the open traveling bag on the chair near the dresser, added his paste, cream and brushes. He set the alarm clock for 11:30, punched a hole in the pillow and coaxed himself into a nap.

In the midst of his dreadful sleep he saw Morley walk by in a crimson cape, swinging a carved ivory cane. Gordon held a wooden walking stick. Morley snarled, then whipped from the inside of the cane a long(lean glittering sword and swung it, knocking it against the wooden stick.

* * *

Gordon awoke hot, gasping. The knocking continued. Dazed and fogged with dreams he went to the door. A colored elevator boy stood there with an innocuous young man.

"Clerk done rang your telephone, Mr. Lewis. You didn't answer, so he sent me up with the gentleman. He say he want to get some keys from you that belong to his boss, Mr. Pearman."

"Come in, fellow. We'll find your boss' keys in a minute. Just make yourself comfortable," said Gordon. "I think I left the keys of the Morley house in my jacket pocket."

"I wouldn't have called on you so late, sir. But Mr. Pearman was mighty excited. He said he had to have the keys at once. One of Mr. Morley's friends arrives from the East tomorrow and wants to live in the house."

"Live in the house? Superfine! Give him my congratulations. Here are the keys. Know the name of the friend?"

"A Mr. Oliver."

"Did you say Oliver?" Gordon grunted. "Sure of that?"

"Yes, sir. That's what they told me at the office. He lived in it before."

"Yes, I know he did," said Gordon.

"Good night, sir. Thanks for the keys." The young man smiled his way out.

Gordon, sitting on the edge of his bed, began puffing heartily on a cigaret.

"What's it mean?" he pondered. "Oliver back in Denver—leaving Moonhollow and Audrey. Something's brewing, and it isn't beer."

He lifted the receiver quickly and called the desk, saying, "This is Mr. Lewis, I've changed my mind about leaving tonight; cancel that plane ticket East, please."

"Glad to hear you're staying," chirrupped the desk clerk.

"Thanks," said Gordon, lowering the receiver. Then he said to himself, "I must keep out of Oliver's way if I can. He mustn't see me. He's plenty danger to Brad Lewis, plenty."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

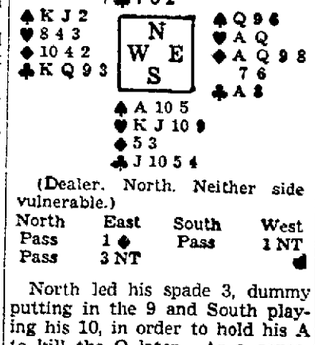
"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU CAN'T GUARD THREE

You are in a terrible spot when you have to try to protect three different suits while the declarer runs the fourth suit. If your partner can't do any part of the work, it is actually impossible for you to do the job, in case the declarer is prepared in advance to take all except two of the remaining tricks. If he has satisfactory re-entries from his own hand into dummy, and vice-versa, he can squeeze you twice, with a "progressive squeeze," and keep you from taking any tricks at all.



(Dealer. North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	1 NT
Pass	3 NT

North led his spade 3, dummy putting in the 9 and South playing his 10, in order to hold his A to kill the Q later. As a consequence, West won with the K and then proceeded to take all the remaining tricks. The diamond 10 brought the J and Q, and the A dropped the K. Four more diamonds followed, raising hob with South, who had to protect against the fourth club, the heart Q and the spade Q. He couldn't do it.

West's discards on the fourth, fifth and sixth diamonds were a heart and two spades, no problem at all. South tossed hearts on the third and fourth diamonds, leaving his K still guarded, and a spade on the fifth. But the sixth was the killer. With only four clubs, two cards in hearts and the spade A, any discard would cost a trick. South chose the club 4.

Seeing that, West then scored the club A, K and Q, plus the now established 9. That card squeezed South again in the two majors. If he tossed away his spade A, the spade J and heart A could finish the hand. So he discarded his heart K guard. The heart A then dropped the K and the Q took the final trick.

If South had discarded his spade A on the sixth diamond, two tricks would have been set up for West right there. If he had tossed his heart K guard, then hearts would have squeezed him between the spade A and the fourth club. Anything he did was wrong.

Your Week-End Lesson.

Why is the lead of a suit headed by the king-queen-jack or the queen-jack-ten usually preferred by expert players to one headed by just the king-queen or the queen-jack, lacking the third card of the sequence? Can you give an example to justify that preference?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Of course you're not going back to the farm, darling," I assured Katharine. "Don't you realize that father had sent for you before Ruth Hayes appeared?

"There is some service he wants of you, I am sure, but he knew that until you got rid of that obsession concerning the hospitals, you would be in no condition to do anything but keep on."

"I am in condition now for anything," she said firmly. "Please ask him to come back. I want to talk to him."

I went to the camouflaged door connecting the two suites and knocked lightly. My father opened the door quickly, and when I had given him Katharine's message he turned to Ronald.

"Please wait here," he said, "and if Adams comes in, tell him that I'll be back shortly."

My father then followed me back to the livingroom of my suite, where we found Katharine pacing up and down the room.

"I am so ashamed of myself," she said. "I have caused you much trouble and delay by my obstinacy. I would know how to deal with a patient acting as I have, but I could not heal myself."

"Dear child!" my father said, as he put a kindly hand upon her shoulder. He added then, with infinite gentleness, "As it happens, you have not delayed or troubled me at all. The only casualty has been your own nervous system. If you can get that in hand, you can be of much service to me, beginning today."

"Thank you so much," she said, her face suddenly illuminated with relief and gratitude. "And please believe that I am at your service for anything you may require. I am quite all right again in mind and body."

"Nevertheless," my father said, "my first command is that you take twenty-four hours of complete rest After that we'll talk about tasks.

"I can tell you now, however," he went on, "that most of your work, and Margaret's too, will be watchful waiting. Margaret will explain to you about the place of Mr. Milner, the hotel manager, in this crazy-quilt of ours, then you will understand how necessary is the guarding of this particular apartment.

"I am sure there will be attempt to install a hidden dictaphone up here, and for that reason the apartment must never be left without an occupant for even five minutes.

"I can tell you this much," he went on, "things are coming to a head. I do not mean," he hastily amended, "that Marion's rescue is merely a matter of days, or that we shall be able to round up all of the subversive gang we are trailing within the fortnight.

Tide Turning.

"However, the safe return of Jack to this country and the fact that luck or Providence enabled Mary to salvage the key page of notes on his experiment, which Ruth Hayes had stolen from him—these two things, with the captures of the minor gangsters we have been able to make, are invaluable assets for our side.

"But we must not relax, even for a moment. That is where your work, Katharine, and Margaret's too, must come in.

"All of your faculties you will have opportunities to use, and there will be occasions when active, perhaps dangerous, service will be required of you. But for the present, the job of both of you is to stay here, watch developments, and be on the alert for any unusual happening."

FAIR OR FOUL

Pinch-Hitting for Rex Hess, Sports Podger.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—A bright yellow shirt and broad-rimmed hat walking on the high heels of the cow country scrambled into the Madison Square Garden ring and was introduced as Ruben Shanks (a cow country name if I ever heard tell of one, podner) and with that another fighter from out in the hinterlands stood in the bright glow of the big time.

He could have been a Jimmy McLarnin from the Far West, a Billy Petrolle from the Midwest, a Sammy Angott from Pennsylvania, a Tiger Flowers from Georgia, but, as a matter of fact, he was Ruben Shanks from Colorado, whence hailed Dempsey.

* * *

He fights next Monday night at Newark, N. J., in what will be his fifth 10 round fight. His opponent to be Vinnie Vines. If he gets past that one all right he will appear in the Garden—for a fight, not an introduction—on Aug. 13.

* * *

"He will go good up here," said his manager, the veteran George Knorr, of Denver, who has been going up and down the land, but mostly around Colorado, with fighters for the last 30-odd years and umpiring ball games in various leagues as a sideline.

"He's just a baby yet, but he's had 31 pro fights and he has won all of them but two, which he lost on decisions. He's a pretty good puncher, but a better boxer. He whipped Henry Armstrong easily at Denver and he split two decisions with Fritzie Zivic at Minneapolis, which may not make my fellow a champ, but it's all right for a kid."

* * *

Shanks was raised 37 miles from Denver on a sugar beet ranch. His father owned some property, lost it and Shanks wound up working in a hide house. Then he started fighting, kept coming on and so here he is with George Knorr in New York for better or for worse.

* * *

He's a stocky kid, who now makes the welterweight limit with ease, although when Knorr got ahold of him he was fighting as a middleweight, which is to say that Knorr has built him down instead of up.

He came into fame with his win over Zivic at Minneapolis in April, then got into the headlines again with Zivic when the latter ran out of a match, then finally went through with it to win a close decision. This isn't the Zivic he used to be when he was welterweight champion, but he's still a pretty good name for a youngster to be toying around with. Shanks popped back into the headlines early this month when he whipped the remains of Henry Armstrong.

He's got a long way to go before he will be a top flight performer in Madison Square Garden, but the road isn't nearly as long nor as rocky as it would be in normal times when there would be more fighters at large.

Double-Win Puts Tribe In Tie With Red Sox

Indians Beat Senators 4-3, 5-4 To Share Second Place Honors.

(By Associated Press)

THE Cleveland Indians were virtually even with the second place Boston Red Sox today as the result of a full evening's fireworks on the stadium diamond.

* * *

The Tribe took both ends of the city's first twilight-night doubleheader from Washington, 4 to 3 and 5 to 4, the latter on the strength of a twelfth-inning single by Jim Hegan after a double steal in the eighth tied up the count. Cleveland was outhit, 13 to 7, in each game.

Boston lost the last half of a similar bill, meanwhile, to St. Louis. That left the Red Sox only a couple of percentage points ahead of the Redskins, both teams being 11½ games behind New York.

Last night's marathon before 12,804 fans began at 6 p. m. and it took the Tribe only the regulation distance to trim the Senators in the evening's opener and give Jim Bagby his eleventh win against four defeats.

* * *

The second contest opened at 8:45 p. m., and midway of the eighth inning it looked as though Walter Masterson was going to whip the Tribe. He had allowed them only two hits, and the visitors had roughed up Mel Harder with a 4 to 1 lead.

* * *

In the eighth, however, Les Fleming took Masterson's first base on balls and Buster Mills, batting for Ray Mack, doubled. They both scored on a double by Otto Denning. After Oscar Grimes had gone in to run for Denning, Roy Weatherly swung at a third strike which eluded Catcher Jack Early—it was scored as an error for Masterson—and gained first while Grimes reached third. Grimes scored the tying run as he and Weatherly worked the double steal.

* * *

The issue was settled in the twelfth, nigh on to midnight, when Fleming walked, Fabian Gaffke singled and Hegan sent Fleming in with the verdict.

* * *

Harry Eisenstat, who succeeded Harder, received credit for the win, his first against one loss.

Sellers Leads Tam O'Shanter

Byron Nelson, Defending Champ, 1 Stroke Behind.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Leading the nation's topnotch golfers as the $15,000 Tam O'Shanter open swung into the third round today was one Gib Sellers, a strapping professional from Walled Lake, Mich., whose brilliant rounds of 68-69 the last two days lifted him abruptly out of comparative obscurity.

Gib was a stroke ahead of the defending champion, Byron Nelson, and two blows in front of his next closest pursuers, Clayton Heafner and Dick Metz. It was heavy company for a player who in 13 years of golf had reached his heights by winning the Arkansas and Michigan open titles.

Frankly, despite Gib's whirlwind start, Nelson remained the favorite. The tall Toledo star still was at the top of his game, and when he is like that he comes close to being impossible to beat in a medal tournament. Lawson Little, who shared the lead with Nelson after the first round with 67's, fell off to a poor 73 yesterday and was three strokes off the pace.

Plans Completed For Midget Races

Everything is in readiness for the last auto races that the Mansfield district may have a chance to witness until after the war. The government has reportedly put a ban on racing after this Sunday.

In addition to the auto races there will be several thrill stunts, one of which will be the jump of an automobile over a trans-continental bus. Since the fatal accident to Lucky Teter and the injury of Lucky Lott, the only man performing this stunt is Captain Dick Rogers, who will appear here.

Entries for the races are exceptionally heavy. Starter George Koontz will get the qualifying trials under way at noon, and the 20 fastest cars to qualify will be allowed to start in the eight championship events.

Expect 12,000 at River Downs Open

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Although special busses are ruled out by wartime conservation measures, President Peter A. Horback predicted a crowd of from 10,000 to 12,000 would find its way to River Downs track for today's opening of a 38-day meeting.

Bus companies, running normal schedules, saw trouble ahead with a normal service overloaded by the usual Saturday crowd to Coney Island amusement park, plus fans bound for the adjacent race track. About 120 taxicabs were ready to help.

The meeting here formerly opened in mid-week, but today's inaugural was decided upon as an "experiment," Horback said.

More than 800 horses were on the grounds and another 50 to 75 were expected from Hamilton, O., after a meeting there ends today.

ASSOCIATION TEAMS START SECOND ROUND

COLUMBUS —(INS)— All rested up after a three-day vacation, teams of the American Association were scheduled today to swing into the second half of their 1942 season.

Vosmik Leads AA Sluggers

Minneapolis Star Takes 1st Place In All-Star Game.

CHICAGO —(AP)— The annual All Star game apparently had an inspiring effect upon American Association sluggers in the last week.

Only Al Powell of St. Paul, who had boosted himself into the lead the week before, failed to join in the general hitting spree that preceded the All Star contest Thursday, and his top spot was taken over by Joe Vosmik of Minneapolis.

The first ten batters were Vosmik, .334; Peck, .332; Joe Bestudik, Indianapolis, .330; Ed Stanky, Milwaukee, .325; Powell, .323; Wayne Blackburn, Indianapolis, .319; Heinz Becker, Milwaukee, .318; Will Norman, Milwaukee, .314; James Grant, St. Paul, .312; Guy Curtright, St. Paul, .311.

Ab Wright of Minneapolis took over the undisputed lead in home runs with 16 and also shot ahead in runs batted in with 77. Another leader in two departments was Stanky, who increased his doubles lead to 32 and took over first place in most runs scored with 75.

Chuck Stevens of Toledo had the most three base hits, 11, Bestudik the most total hits, 121; while Ed Levy of Kansas City tied George Myatt of Columbus for the most stolen bases. Each had 17.

Herb Karpel added another victory to his undefeated string and now has seven to top all pitchers.

TRIS SPEAKER WINS BOUT WITH DEATH

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Tris Speaker, the gray eagle of the baseball world, today was acknowledged to have won his second grim bout with death in five years as Lakeside hospital attendants made preparations to remove him to his home.

Speaker, taken to the hospital some three weeks ago suffering from a severe cold and ar intestinal obstruction which necessitated an operation, finally whipped the condition which placed him on the danger list for nearly two weeks.

Travelers Clip Clippers, 7-6

Push Over Run In Ninth To Take Close Contest.

The Mansfield Travelers took seven trips around the bases at the Fairgrounds last night to close out the Loudonville Clippers by a 7-6 score.

* * *

The Mansfielders bunched hits in the fourth inning to put across five tallies but the Clippers came back in the sixth and eighth to tie the score at 6-all.

* * *

The Travelers punched over another counter in their half of the ninth, however, and then held the Clippers off to take the contest.

The Travelers will play the Pittsburgh Plate Glass team from Mt. Vernon at the Ontario high school diamond. Lanky Bill Martin will hurl for the Travelers. The game starts at 2:30 p. m.

Prospect Jrs., and Pauls Win Again

Deft trouncings were handed out by the Pauls and Prospect Park Juniors of the YMCA boys' league in games yesterday at Prospect park.

The Pauls downed the YMCA Pros in a batting spree which netted them 22 runs. The Pros managed to get together 14 runs but it wasn't enough.

The Prospect Park Juniors scored five times in both the eighth and ninth innings to snatch a victory from the Brinkerhoff team which had been leading 4 to 1. The Final score was 11-6.

HENRY ARMSTRONG HITS COMEBACK TRAIL

SAN FRANCISCO — (INS) — Henry Armstrong, negro pugilist who during his career has held world championship crowns in three weight divisions, will arrive in San Francisco tomorrow, ready to prove that he is on the comeback trail.

The negro, who hails from Los Angeles, put himself back into the boxing picture again when he won a technical knockout over Joe Ybarra of Oakland in the third round of a ten-round main event at Sacramento, Cal., last Monday.

Favor Shut Out In Arlington

Greentree Star Attempts To Beat Jinx In Classic.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Shut Outs tries today to overcome the favorite's jinx in the $50,000 added Arlington Classic, a turf prize that has eluded a trio of champions in its last three renewals.

* * *

Because the Classic has been a jinx race for such favorites as Whirlaway, Twenty Grand and Johnstown, some turf experts were skeptical of Shut Out's ability to take the winner's share of a purse that will gross $89,750.

* * *

Shut Out, star of the Greentree stable, has triumphed in the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Stakes, the Yankee Handicap and the Blue Grass Stakes this season while earning $148,747. Victory in the Classic today will clinch its claim to the three-year-old championship.

Alsab, which has been Shut Out's chief contender throughout the campaign, was not among the 11 stars named for the west's richest event.

* * *

Shut Out's chief opposition was expected to come from With Regards, winner of the Arkansas Derby, and Valdina Orphan, victor in the Dwyer Stakes.

* * *

In addition to the "big three" the field will be composed of Rounders, Col. E. R. Bradley's Bless Me, Milky Way Farm's Dogpatch, Hal Price Headley's Anti-Climax, A. C. Ernst's Aleter, King's Abbey, owned by film magnate Louis B. Mayer, Mrs. E. A. Augustus' Trelawny and Mrs. Emil Denemark's Bolus.

WILMINGTON GET RAMEY

Reds' Bid Held Off By Giants

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

There are more ways than one to win a baseball game, but the formula employed with increasing success by the New York Giants is to harness all the power available, even if it means sending infielders to the outfield and regulars to the scrap heap.

* * *

The latest of masterful Melvin Ott's experiments took big Babe Young off the bench, which he had warmed all season because Johnny Mize was doing a brisk business at the Babe's old first base stand, and spotted him in center field.

* * *

Young came through yesterday with an eleventh inning homer—his second game-winning circuit clout in as many days—to give the Giants a 3-2 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

Yesterday's wallop not only stopped Cincinnati and Bucky Walters, but it saved third place in the National league standings for the Giants, who now own a margin of a game and a half over the Reds.

* * *

At St. Louis, where an unusually large crowd of 21,000 took advantage of the 5:30 starting time, the Red Sox whipped the Browns, 5-3, in the twilight opener of their bargain bill but once under the lights, the teams battled eleven innings before Chet Laabs gave the Brownies the nod with a two-run homer. The score was 3 to 1.

* * *

Jake Wade registered his second straight triumph since being picked up by the Chicago White Sox, a 2-1 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics in a night contest.

The only afternoon game in the American league saw the Yankees blank the Detroit Tigers, 3-0, on the four-hit pitching of Spud Chandler, who gained his eleventh triumph against two defeats.

The Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals maintained their one-two pace atop the National league with little trouble.

* * *

Whitlow Wyatt stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates with seven hits as Brooklyn triumphed, 6-4, and Lefty Max Lanier shut out the Boston Braves on six hits while his Cardinal mates collected 16 and coasted to an 8-0 victory.

* * *

A night game between the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phils was postponed.

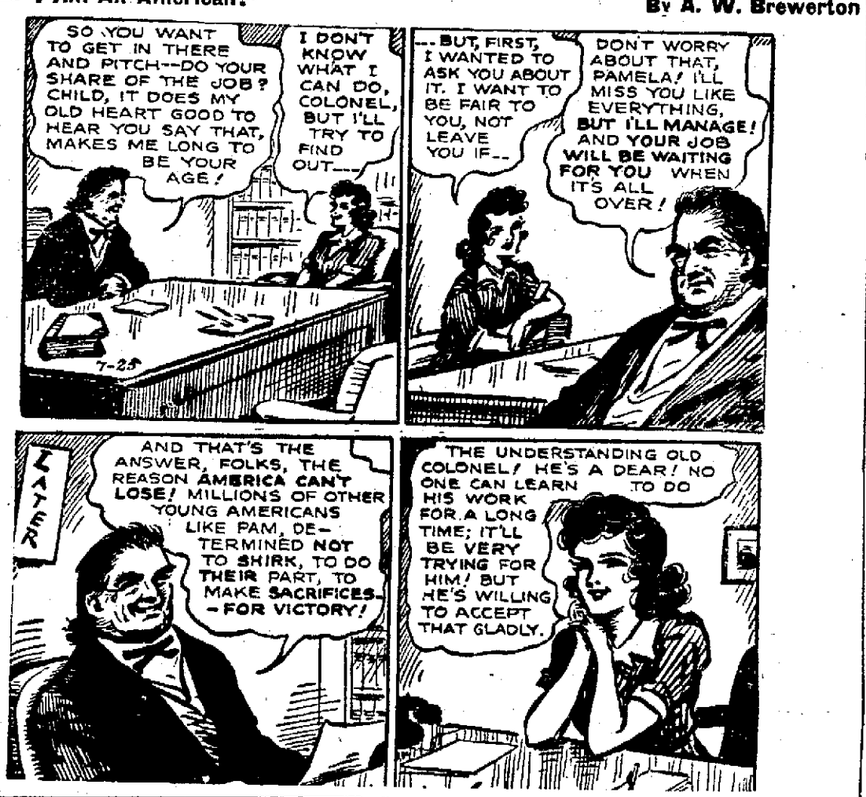
PAM—"I Am An American!" By A. W. Brewerton



SO YOU WANT TO GET IN THERE AND PITCH--DO YOUR SHARE OF THE JOB? CHILD, IT DOES MY OLD HEART GOOD TO HEAR YOU SAY THAT, MAKES ME LONG TO BE YOUR AGE!
I DON'T KNOW WHAT I CAN DO, COLONEL, BUT I'LL TRY TO FIND OUT---
7-25
---BUT, FIRST, I WANTED TO ASK YOU ABOUT IT. I WANT TO BE FAIR TO YOU, NOT LEAVE YOU IF--
DON'T WORRY ABOUT THAT, PAMELA! I'LL MISS YOU LIKE EVERYTHING, BUT I'LL MANAGE! AND YOUR JOB WILL BE WAITING FOR YOU WHEN IT'S ALL OVER!
LATER
AND THAT'S THE ANSWER, FOLKS, THE REASON AMERICA CAN'T LOSE! MILLIONS OF OTHER YOUNG AMERICANS LIKE PAM, DE- TERMINED NOT TO SHIRK, TO DO THEIR PART, TO MAKE SACRIFICES - FOR VICTORY!
THE UNDERSTANDING OLD COLONEL! HE'S A DEAR! NO ONE CAN LEARN TO DO HIS WORK FOR A LONG TIME; IT'LL BE VERY TRYING FOR HIM! BUT HE'S WILLING TO ACCEPT THAT GLADLY.

RUSSIANS MAKE 'DEATH STAND' ON SOUTH FRONT

Exact Bloody Toll as Germans Break Defense Line In Caucasus Drive.

The Soviet defenders of Rostov were undergoing a great strain and their counter-attacks succeeded only in slowing down the tempo of the German drive.

The situation at Tsimlyansk was understood to be as menacing to the Russian cause as that at Rostov.

Large Nazi tank units conducted relentless assaults against Rostov's defenses in an effort to break through. Yesterday and today the Germans brought up reserves from a number of directions and forced wedges into the Soviet defense line. The German tactics placed the Russians under threat of being surrounded and cut off. The Red army battled fiercely to extricate itself from German encircling maneuvers.

Official Soviet sources admitted that the plight of Rostov was grave as the Nazis stormed the defenses of the north Caucasus capital but the German claim that the city already had fallen was not borne out in the high command communique.

Unofficial reports said desperate fighting was in progress in the streets of Rostov as Russian rear guard troops battled the onrushing forces of Nazi Field Marshal Fedor von Bock building by building.

The city, reportedly ablaze from repeated Nazi aerial attacks, is a maze of tank traps, land mines and machine-gun nests. Every road is barricaded.

Axis dispatches previously acknowledged that progress of the Nazi armies i. the approaches to Rostov was impeded by numerous mines.

(In London the Daily Telegraph carried a dispatch stating that despite the formidable defenses of Rostov "loss of the city is only a question of a few hours.")

The main forces of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko, the Soviet commander who drove the Nazis from Rostov last December after they had held the city only a week, had dropped back to the southern bank of the Don, but Russian opposition remained considerable.

The road down which the Nazis were advancing from Novocherkassk, 28 miles to the northeast, was continually pounded by American-made flying fortress and Douglas bombers.

In the Tsimlyansk sector the Russians also were massed for a last-ditch stand on the southern bank of the Don. One breakthrough in this area by a Nazi regiment which skirted the waterway was acknowledged by Red army commanders who said the German force had been routed.

The high command announcement of the crossing by Russians to the west bank of the Don at Voronezh indicated continued Soviet successes in counter-attacks in that area despite the fact the Germans have sent in numerous reserves to protect their left flank.

The Moscow radio said that the Russians were clearing the west bank and causing the Germans "irreplaceable losses."

Terrific battles were reported in progress in forests northwest of Voronezh.

Shortly before noon the Moscow radio said that Soviet forces still hold the initiative in the Voronezh area. Fierce battles are raging over a wide front and the Germans are being worn down, it was said.

Benes Urges Second Front At Once

(By United Press)

LONDON—Pressure on the Allied governments to open immediately a second front in Europe increased today as Dr. Eduard Benes, president of the refugee Czechoslovakian government, revealed that he had been doing his utmost to influence such action and British labor petitioned Prime Minister Winston Churchill for an early invasion.

"How long the war will last depends on whether there will be a second front in Europe this year," Benes said in a speech to refugee Czech soldiers.

"There is a certain risk connected with it but next year the risk will be even greater. If a second front can within the next three months divert a certain proportion of the German forces from the eastern front, it is probable that things will develop quickly and we might be home within a year."

Convoy Sustains 230 Air Attacks

LONDON —(INS)— A Russia-bound convoy of British and Soviet merchant ships reached port safely and discharged cargoes despite the heaviest and longest sustained air attack in the history of warfare, the Daily Mail declared today.

At least 2,500 planes were over the convoy in 230 attacks for a period of six days, the Daily Mail account said. When the ships docked the Germans continued to attack, averaging 11 raids daily.

"For determination, sustained ferocity and prodigal sacrifice the six-day attack has never been equaled," said the Daily Mail.

Nazis Burn Towns To Halt Guerrillas

LONDON —(U P)— The Nazis and their puppets of central Europe have begun the systematic burning of entire villages in an effort to halt growing guerrilla activity, it was reported today.

A high official of the refugee Polish government said he learned on good authority that the Germans had razed four Polish towns and, after executing hundreds of citizens and driving off the surviving members of the population—men, women and children—to Nazi labor camps.

A Jugoslav spokesman reported that the puppet Croat government, by direction of the Italians, had decreed that entire Jugoslav villages will be burned and destroyed unless patriot activities end

The guerrilla activities of Polish patriots have become a large-scale threat against the Nazi rear, inciting the German occupation authorities to their new campaign of terror the Polish government officials said

TRIPLES GOAL

Bucyrus Goes All Out In It's Bond Sale Effort.

BUCYRUS — This city of 10,000 persons got behind the war effort in a substantial manner today,

Its citizens more than doubled a $50,000 war bond purchase goal set up for American Heroes' Day observed here yesterday with much pomp and ceremony.

Officials in charge of the celebration reported a total sale of $165,388 in bonds and $1,200 in war stamps at the celebration, which was highlighted by the appearance of Arlene Davis, world-famous aviatrix.

Playing an important part in the war bond sale was the purchase by the Ohio Locomotive Crane company of 265 one hundred dollar certificates for presentation to employes of the firm

Urge One Commander For Anti-Sub Forces

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Appointment of an American admiral as supreme unified commander of the anti-submarine air land and sea forces on this side of the Atlantic is being urged in certain high United Nations naval quarters today

Failure of the United States to have all the anti-submarine forces under the supreme command is regarded by some of our closest naval allies as a mistake.

Despite the efforts at co-ordination among the navy and army in coastal patrol work, it is felt that the separate activities of the two defense services tend to impair the efficiency of the organizational work in combatting the submarine menace

Russians Say War's Greatest Battle On

MOSCOW — (INS) — The official government newspaper Izvestia today declared that the very life of Russia was threatened by onrushing German hordes

"The present fighting is the greatest battle of the war" Izvestia said

"The movement of the Germans south is threatening the life of our country It is impossible to exaggerate its importance"

Report U. S. Troops Arriving In Iraq

STOCKHOLM—(U P)—A dispatch from Berlin to the newspaper Tidningen reported today, on the basis of Ankara reports, that United States troops were arriving uninterruptedly at Basra, Iraq, on the Persian gulf.

It was said that the Americans were replacing British troops who had been sent to Egypt.

A United States military mission has arrived at Tehran, the Iranian capital, to reorganize the Iranian army, the dispatch said.

London Hears Some Troops Withdraw

LONDON—(U P)—Imperial troops have withdrawn from one or two points on the Alamein line in Egypt, presumably because they were exposed to heavy shelling, it was said authoritatively today.

STOCK MARKET HOLDS UNEVEN COURSE TODAY

Forecasts of U. S. Industrial Drop In Face of War Material Shortages.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock market leaders held to a narrowly uneven course in today's transactions.

Fractional advances were registered for Eastman Kodak, Union Carbide, United Aircraft, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Firestone. On the offside were Chrysler, Boeing Yellow Truck, Woolworth and Commonwealth Edison. Numerous issues were unchanged.

Searchers for market trend clues noted forecasts that industrial activity this year probably would not reach the peak anticipated earlier owing to deferment of war plant expansion because of growing material shortages.

Attention also was given the survey of the National Lumber Manufacturers association estimating lumber production, shipments and new orders for the week ended July 18 were under the comparable period a year ago by 5, 4 and 1 per cent, respectively.

ALL FOR LOVE

Bride Cooks Up Spy Story to Get Husband's Attention.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Mary Phillips, 20-year-old bride, caused the FBI a lot of headaches with her story about being visited, bound and beaten by Nazi spies but she finally admitted that she thought it all up herself in order to gain the attention of her husband, William.

"Ever since my husband got a good defense job, it seemed to me he was paying more attention to his work than to me," she said. "Then the idea came to me that if I could make him think I had been visited by spies, he would love me again. I don't know what gave me the idea. That's all there is to it."

PRIVATE SENTENCED

CHICAGO—(U P)—In what was believed to be the first conviction of subversion within the armed forces, the sixth service command announced today that a first class private in the U. S. army had been sentenced by court martial to five years in prison for sympathy with Germany and Japan.

THEATERS

Human Drama.

Not a war picture in the fullest sense of the word but a human intimate story of middle class English family life under the pounding of the Axis enemy is the current Ohio attraction, "Mrs. Miniver" Based on Jan Struther's novel of the same name the picture shows how one family carries on, how the son in the family joins the RAF and the husband helps with the rescue at Dunkirk. Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon are co-starred and the cast has Teresa Wright.

* * *

Beery Comedy.

The kind of a man that people build a monument to one day and string a noose around his neck the next affords Wallace Berry a typical Berry role in "Jackass Mail," the Madison attraction. Marjorie Main and J Carrol Naish are in the cast. A story of Japanese espionage that rips the lid off the events that led up to the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, "Secret Agent of Japan," the second feature, has Preston Foster and Lynn Bari at the head of the cast.

* * *

Bright Comedy.

"The Fleet's In," brightest comedy with music of the summer season, opens Saturday at the Ritz. Dorothy Lamour and William Holden hold top billing as the girl and a gob while Eddie Bracken, Betty Hutton and Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra furnish the fun and the rhythm. Lorraine and Rognan, a comedy dance team, and Cass Daley, eccentric singer, are others in the film that has to do with a killer-diller sailor and a girl who is hard to get. "What Price Vengeance," with Lyle Talbot and Wendy Barrie, is the second picture.

* * *

Tropical Romance.

Rich one day and broke the next as a result of their naive belief that a bank account will last as long as there are checks in a checkbook, "The Tuttles of Tahiti," the film family appearing in the picture by the same name at the Park boasts Charles Laughton at the head of the clan. Jon Hall, Peggy Drake and Florence Bates are in the cast of this Polynesian comedy. The "Saint's Vacation," with Hugh Sinclair and Sally Grey is the second attraction.

TILLIE THE TOILER

OH, MOMSY THIS WITHERING HEAT IS RUINING MY VICTORY GARDEN
IT'S A SHAME, TILLIE, BUT THERE ISN'T A THING YOU CAN DO ABOUT IT
JUST THE SAME, I'LL HAVE TO DO SOME THING TO PROTECT MY VEGETABLES
GOOD MORNING MRS JONES, IS TILLIE AT HOME?
SHE IS OUT IN THE GARDEN, MAC
LOOK, MAC, I THINK THE SHADE IS GOING TO REVIVE THIS PLANT
FOR VICTORY BUY WAR BONDS AND STAMPS
GOSH, TILLIE, YOU CAN'T PROTECT YOUR VEGETABLE PLANTS FROM THE WITHERING HEAT WITH THAT SUN-SHADE
BUT, MAC, IF I DON'T DO SOMETHING THE PLANTS WILL WILT AND DIE
SURE, BUT YOU CAN'T DO ANY GOOD WITH A SUN-SHADE
WHAT YOU NEED IS A CIRCUS TENT
GOOD GRIEF! JUST LOOK AT THE WEEDS IN MY GARDEN! AND I'M SICK OF PULLING WEEDS
WHAT'S THE MATTER, TILLIE
SNIFF SNIFF
OH, MAC, I CAN'T PULL OUT THIS WEED
DON'T CRY, TILLIE, I'LL PULL IT OUT FOR YOU SMACK
THANK YOU, MAC
AND, MAC, THE BEAN PATCH NEEDS WEEDING, TOO
MAC, YOU SHOULD SEE THE WAY MY BEANS ARE GROWING, I'LL BE ABLE TO PICK THEM NEXT WEEK
I'LL HAVE RIPE TOMATOES IN A COUPLE OF DAYS, I'M BEATING YOU ALL WITH MY TOMATOES IS THAT SO?
OH, MAC, I'VE GOT A RIPE TOMATO NOW!
YOU CAN'T PUT THIS OVER, TILLIE JONES, THAT'S LIP-STICK ON THIS TOMATO AND YOU PUT IT THERE SHOO!
GOOD GRIEF! TOBY LANE'S CHICKENS ARE RUINING MY GARDEN
I CAN'T WASTE MY TIME CHASING THESE PESTS, I'LL HAVE TO USE SOME OTHER METHOD TO KEEP THEM AWAY
THIS WILL FRIGHTEN THEM OFF
GWAK
MAC, TOBY LANE'S CHICKENS ARE JUST RUINING MY GARDEN
TOBY LANE IS AS MUCH A PAIN TO ME, AS HIS CHICKENS ARE TO YOU. GET ME SOME CORN AND I'LL GET RID OF HIS CHICKENS
CHICK! CHICK! CHICK! COME AND GET THE CORN
THE STRINGS ON THE CORN ARE ATTACHED TO TOY BALLOONS
CLUCK! CLUCK! CLUCK!
THERE THEY GO!
MAC, YOU'RE WONDERFUL

THAT FOUL SCUM IS IN SAVANNAH'S CELL! HOW AM I GOING TO WORK THIS?
BETTER LET HIM THINK I'M STILL OUT. HOPE SAVANNAH CATCHES ON!
HE DOESN'T ANSWER! YOU'VE HURT HIM! LET ME GO TO HIM — PLEASE!
I LEDT YOU HAVE PEEK AT HIM UND DEN I SHOW YOU HOW VE ARYANS MAKE DER LUFF!
MEL GRAFF
HE'S UNCONSCIOUS! PLEASE LET ME GO IN!
VELL JUST FOR A MINUTE.. BUT NO TRIGGS!
X-9! OH, MY POOR DARLING... YOU'RE HURT — AND IT'S ALL MY FAULT!
DON'T DISLIKE ME, PLEASE... I KNOW I'VE ACTED LIKE A NIT-WIT, BUT I LOVE YOU.. YES. I DO!
POOEY! HE CANNOT EVEN HEAR YOU!
ALONE IN HIS CELL AGAIN, X-9 —
MEL GRAFF
...BUT HE'S UNCONSCIOUS.. HE'S BEEN HURT! YOU CAN'T JUST LEAVE HIM LYING THERE!
GET BACK IN THERE! I VILL TAKE A LOOK AT DER SWINE!
IF BRINCE CAESAR KNEW I BLAYED TOO ROUGH MIT DIS BUMMER HE VOULD RAISE DER ROOF.. DER BRINCE VANTS TO DEAL MIT HIM IN HIS OWN VAY!
YAVOLD! HE ISS NOT UNCONSCIOUS!
NO, HEINIE..
...BUT YOU ARE!
MEL GRAFF
X-9! HOW DID Y— I
I'LL EXPLAIN LATER, HONEY! THE GUARD'S OUT COLD! I LOCKED HIM IN!
FREE AGAIN! OH, X-9..... YOU'RE — — WONDERFUL!
PRINCE CAESAR... LOOK!
QUICK! LET ME HAVE YOUR GUN!
MEL GRAFF
WE PICKED THE WRONG EXIT, BABY! PRINCE CAESAR IS TRYING TO DOT OUR EYES WITH HOT LEAD!
OH! THEY'RE COMING UP THE STAIRS, X-9!
I HAVE THE GUARD'S GUN, BUT WE CAN'T SHOOT IT OUT WITH THAT MOB. WHAT'S THIS IT'S SOME SORT OF DUMBWAITER! GET IN, SAVANNAH... WE'RE GOING TO MAKE AN EMERGENCY LANDING IN THIS WOODEN PARACHUTE!
A FEW MINUTES LATER...
OKAY... WHILE THEY'RE PLAYING HIDE AND SEEK, LET'S GET TO THAT BARN WHERE THEY'RE HIDING THE BOMBERS!
MEL GRAFF
THEY'VE GOT A HALF-DOZEN OF THOSE BABIES, READY TO BOMB THE CAPITAL! SAVANNAH, WE'VE GOT TO DESTROY 'EM!
BUT HOW?
I'M GOING TO CONVERT THIS FUEL TRUCK INTO A GASOLINE BOMB! I'LL SATURATE THIS ROPE WITH GAS AND LET IT DANGLE OUT OF THE TANK, LIKE A WICK!
WHEN I GET THE ENGINE GOING, YOU LIGHT THE WICK... I'LL JUMP BEFORE THE TRUCK HITS THE BARN
O-OKAY
NOW!

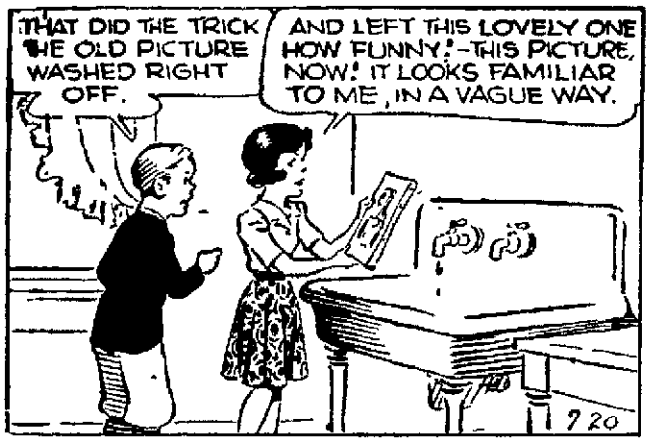
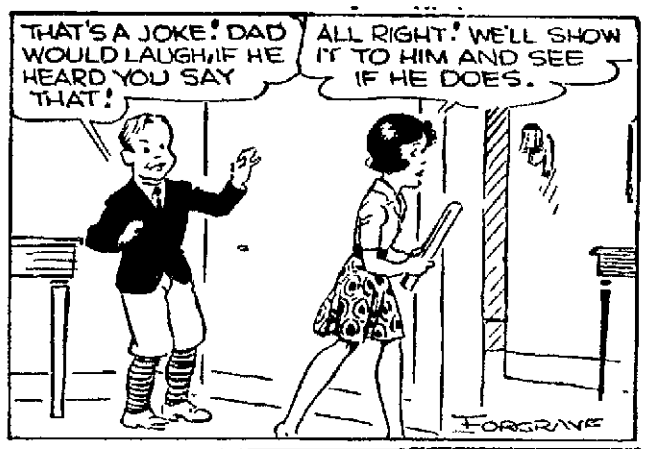
BIG SISTER



THAT DID THE TRICK THE OLD PICTURE WASHED RIGHT OFF.
AND LEFT THIS LOVELY ONE HOW FUNNY!-THIS PICTURE, NOW! IT LOOKS FAMILIAR TO ME, IN A VAGUE WAY.
7-20

GET OUT! HOW COULD IT WHEN YOU'VE NEVER EVEN SEEN IT BEFORE?
I KNOW, BUT JUST THE SAME THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT IT—
Copr 1942 King Features Syndicate Inc World rights reserved



YES, BUDDY, IT'S EASY TO SEE WHY THIS PICTURE MIGHT LOOK FAMILIAR TO BETH.
BUT SHE'S NEVER SEEN IT BEFORE. IT WAS PAINTED OVER, ANOTHER PICTURE ON TOP OF IT!
7-21

YOU SEE, IT'S A COPY OF A VERY FAMOUS MASTERPIECE SUCH COPIES AREN'T RARE AT ALL.
THERE NOW, BUDDY, WHAT DID I—WAIT A MINUTE!! DAD! DID YOU SAY MASTERPIECE?

REMEMBER THAT OFFICER SAID HE HAD EXPECTED TO FIND A STOLEN MASTERPIECE HERE?
WHY-WHY, SO HE DID! BY JINGO! COULD THIS BE IT? I DOUBT IT.
FORGRAVE

THERE'S YOUR DECODED NOTE. YOU TURNED A NEAT TRICK WHEN YOU FOUND THAT BIT OF PAPER, I'D SAY!

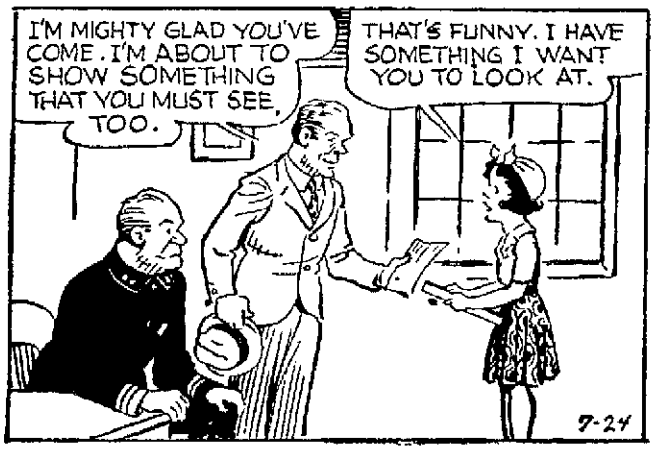
WELL, IF IT ISN'T THE MASTERMIND, HIMSELF! WHAT'S ON THE FIRE TODAY, MAC?
SOMETHING PLENTY HOT. HOT ENOUGH TO BURN YOU WHEN YOU HEAR!
7-23

SO? WELL, I'M LISTENING GO AHEAD AND LET'S SEE IF IT BLISTERS.
BEEN RIDING ME PLENTY HARD FOR MY SO-CALLED WILD GOOSE CHASE, HAVEN'T YOU? YOU'VE HAD A LOT OF FUN.

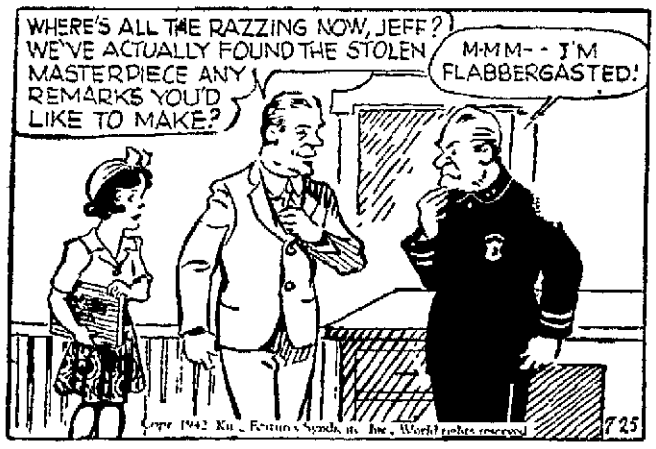
YES, SIR! YOU SURE GOT OFF ON THE WRONG FOOT THAT TIME WAIT A MINUTE, WHO IS THIS?
WHY-HELLO! IT'S BETH! HOW LUCKY! I'VE SOMETHING HERE I WANT YOU TO SEE!
AND I'VE SOMETHING TO SHOW YOU, TOO!
FORGRAVE
Copr 1942 King Features Syndicate Inc World rights reserved



I'M MIGHTY GLAD YOU'VE COME. I'M ABOUT TO SHOW SOMETHING THAT YOU MUST SEE, TOO.
THAT'S FUNNY. I HAVE SOMETHING I WANT YOU TO LOOK AT.
7-24

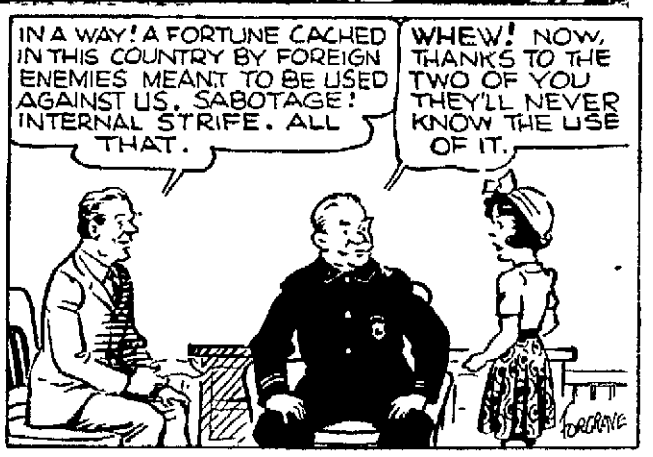
YOU TOLD US YOU THOUGHT THE THIEF YOU CAUGHT AT OUR HOUSE WAS AFTER A STOLEN PICTURE.
SO I DID, BUT IT WAS A BIGGER THING THAN THAT HE WAS AFTER—THIS PAPER-
Copr 1942, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved

THIS PICTURE TURNED UP IN A FUNNY WAY. I THOUGHT MAYBE-
GREAT BALLS OF FIRE, JEFF! SEE HERE! THAT'S IT. THAT'S IT!!
D-DON'T BE TOO SURE, MAC.
FORGRAVE



WHERE'S ALL THE RAZZING NOW, JEFF? WE'VE ACTUALLY FOUND THE STOLEN MASTERPIECE ANY REMARKS YOU'D LIKE TO MAKE?
M-M-M-- I'M FLABBERGASTED!
7-25

JUST A BIT OF PAPER BETH FOUND A MESSAGE IN CODE. DECODED, IT SAYS-- WELL, THERE IT IS. READ IT.
GREAT GOBS O' MUD!! WHAT IS THIS? DIRECTIONS FOR FINDING A HIDDEN TREASURE?



IN A WAY! A FORTUNE CACHED IN THIS COUNTRY BY FOREIGN ENEMIES MEANT TO BE USED AGAINST US. SABOTAGE! INTERNAL STRIFE. ALL THAT.

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

OH, MR. OLIVER, I JUST LOVE ORPHANS! I THINK THEY'RE SIMPLY WONDERFUL - EVERYONE SAYS ALL YOUR ORPHANS ARE SIMPLY DIVINE -
THANK YOU, MRS. CACKLE, YOU ARE MOST KIND - WHILE I AM VERY FOND OF ALL MY LITTLE GUESTS, I FEAR YOU WILL FIND THEM FAR FROM DIVINE
I UNDER-STAND
BUT I AM SURE YOU WILL FIND THEM HUMAN AND LOVABLE
OH, I CAN HARDLY WAIT TO SEE THE LITTLE ANGELS
HENRY, DEAR - DID YOU EVER SEE SUCH A GROUP OF ANGELS? LOOK AT THAT MANLY LITTLE BOY - AND THAT BLONDE GIRL - ISN'T SHE A LIVING DOLL? AND LOOK AT THAT DARK-HAIRED ANGEL - AND THAT CURLY-HAIRED BOY - AND -
DARRELL McCLURE
IN OUR BIG HOUSE WE HAVE ROOM FOR DOZENS OF ORPHANS - HUNDREDS OF ORPHANS - I'D LIKE TO ADOPT EVERY CHILD WE SAW YESTERDAY AT MR. OLIVER'S -
MY DEAR - WHILE I AM SURE ONE OR TWO ORPHANS WOULD BRIGHTEN OUR LIVES, I HAVE NO DESIRE TO ADOPT THEM IN DOZEN LOTS
FOR VICTORY BUY UNITED STATES WAR BONDS AND STAMPS
HENRY CACKLE! HOW CAN YOU BE SO HARD-HEARTED? WE HAVE A GREAT, BIG HOUSE - HEAPS OF MONEY - YOU OWN DOZENS OF HORSES - DON'T YOU THINK AN ANGELIC LITTLE CHILD IS AS VALUABLE AS A HORSE??
LOOK, ZERO - THERE'S THE LADY THAT WAS HERE YESTERDAY - SHE THINKS ORPHANS ARE SWELL - YESTERDAY SHE LOOKED LIKE SHE WAS LOOKING AT ME!
DARRELL McCLURE
I AM SURE YOUR WIFE'S DESIRES ARE INSPIRED BY HER LOVING HEART - BUT HER PLAN FOR ADOPTING ORPHANS BY THE DOZEN IS - SHALL WE SAY - IM-PRACTICAL?
I UNDERSTAND YOUR VIEWPOINT, MR OLIVER - MRS. CACKLE IS A WARM HEARTED WOMAN - BUT EXTREMELY IMPULSIVE - HER LOVE FOR CHILDREN IS SO GREAT, IT CLOUDS HER GOOD JUDGMENT
PERHAPS, IF SHE COULD SEE MY LITTLE GUESTS ONE AT A TIME - ??
A SPLENDID PLAN - I AM SURE THAT WOULD SUCCEED IN CONCENTRATING HER LOVE ON ONE OR TWO OF YOUR LITTLE WARDS
OH, ANNIE - I THINK I AM GOING TO BE ADOPTED - A LOVELY LADY IN MR. OLIVER'S OFFICE HUGGED AND KISSED ME AND SAID I LOOKED LIKE A LITTLE ANGEL
GLORYOSKY, EDNA - THAT'S GRAND
DARRELL McCLURE
I'LL BET IT COST A MILLION DOLLARS!
GEE, MR. CACKLE MUST BE AWFUL RICH
LOOK AT THAT SWELL CAR
HERE COMES BOBBY - LOOK HOW HE'S GRINNING!
MAYBE THE RICH FOLKS ARE GOING TO ADOPT HIM
- THEN THE LADY CALLED ME HER PRECIOUS DARLING AN' SAID THAT WHEN I GREW UP I MIGHT BE PRESIDENT OF THE WHOLE UNITED STATES -
DID YOU LIKE THAT LITTLE BOY WELL ENOUGH TO ADOPT HIM?
I ADORED HIM - BUT IT'S HARD TO DECIDE - IT'S LIKE TRYING TO PICK THE MOST BEAUTIFUL FLOWER IN A GREAT, BIG, WONDERFUL GARDEN
DARRELL McCLURE
MR. OLIVER WISHES TO SEE YOU IN HIS OFFICE - MR. AND MRS. CACKLE ARE WITH HIM - THEY'RE STILL TRYING TO ADOPT SOMEONE
OH, GEE! DO YOU THINK THEY MIGHT ADOPT ME?
I THINK THEY OUGHTA MAKE UP THEIR MINDS - THEY'VE LOOKED AT ALMOST EVERY CHILD IN THE PLACE
BUT I KNOW ONE THING - IF I WERE LOOKING FOR A LITTLE DAUGHTER, I'D BE MIGHTY GLAD TO ADOPT YOU!
HONEST? NO FOOLIN'? NOW I DON'T FEEL SO SCARED - DO YOU THINK I OUGHTA TAKE ZERO WITH ME?
NO - THEY JUST WANT TO SEE YOU - ZERO AND I WILL STAY HERE AND HOPE THIS IS YOUR LUCKY DAY
DARRELL McCLURE
THAT LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY IS A WONDERFUL CHILD - SO SWEET AND HONEST - I'M MAD ABOUT HER - BUT -
BUT WHAT? DON'T TELL ME YOU HAVE CHANGED YOUR MIND AGAIN?
HENRY! HOW CAN YOU SAY SUCH A THING? YOU KNOW WE PROMISED MR. OLIVER WE WOULD ADOPT LITTLE ANNIE
BUT I CAN'T HELP WISHING SHE HAD LOVELY GOLDEN CURLS AND BIG BLUE EYES LIKE THAT LITTLE GIRL CALLED EDNA SOMETHING -
YOU KNOW HOW I ADORE GOLDEN CURLS
GLORYOSKY, ZERO - I'M SO HAPPY - WE'RE GONNA BE ADOPTED TOMORROW, LIVE IN A SWELL HOUSE AN' HAVE A FATHER AN' MOTHER - GEE! IT'S TWICE AS GOOD AS I USED TO DREAM IT WOULD BE.
FOR VICTORY BUY WAR
